A LOOK AT MARIN, 1872

There was memorabilia galore at the Marin Civic Center yesterday when, after long months of waiting, a century-old time capsule found imbedded in the cornerstone of the old county courthouse was opened. The box yielded coins, as those handled by Frank A. Norick, a University of California anthropologist (above), and newspapers and miscellaneous items, as viewed by Norick and others (below). The material, placed in the box in 1872, will be displayed for three months at the county library at the Civic Center, starting next week.

122 Make The Filing Deadline

A total of 122 candidates entered the running for more than 120 elective seats in Marin and Sonoma counties yesterday as the 5 p.m. filing deadline passed. (See state story, page 2.)

Last-minute filings included a fifth candidate in Marin's Fourth Supervisorial District, an incumbent's aunt in the Marin Municipal Water District, two candidates for Sonoma County supervisor and a Peace and Freedom Party candidate and an 18-year-old Democrat, both in the Seventh Assembly District.

One intended candidate, meanwhile, failed to make the dealine at the Marin County Elections Office. S. Robert Politzer of Sausalito, a past chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, arrived five minutes late, automatically expelling himself from the committee when his term expires this year.

The fifth candidate in the Fourth Supervisorial District is Vincent Saccamanno, a 39-yaar-old architect who lives at Drake's Beach Estates. A six-year resident of Marin, he is making his first run for public office, his wife reported.

Saccamanno was the only candidate to both pick up and file his nomination papers on the last day.

In Sonoma County, the deadline showed six candidates for Sonoma County supervisor for the Fifth District. Filing yesterday were David E. Bills, a Sebastopol building contractor, and incumbent Robert Theiller.

Candidates who had previously filed were Jack R. Galvin, Virginia Hechtman, Bernard J. Lamb and Grant F. King. The fifth district includes most of West Sonoma, Sebastopol and a small part of Rohnert Park and Cotati.

The family competition in Division 2 of the water district came from Vera M. McPhail of San Rafael, whose nephew is the incumbent she is challenging, John M. McPhail Jr., also of San Rafael. Mrs. McPhail is a major stockholder in McPhail's Inc.

In the First Congressional District, Rep. Don H. Clausen was the only Republican to file. On the Democratic side, William A. Nighswonger filed yesterday, joining Patricia Losh, a Eureka housewife, in the June 6 contest.

Nighswonger is head of the political science department at Sonoma State College. He is a resident of Santa Rosa and a former member of the Santa Rosa Board of Education.

Also in the congressional district, Jonathan T. Ames of Napa filed for the Peace and Freedom Party primary.

In the First State Senatorial District, Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, filed to retain his seat of 35 years. He will be challenged in the primary by Henry K. Rogers of Eureka. Rogers owns a janitorial service and is a former Sonoma County sheriff's deputy.

Toni Sutley, a Sonoma State College graduate student in English, filed for the Senate seat as a representative of the Peace and Freedom party. Mrs. Sutley, 27, is a former VISTA volunteer, serving in Oregon with migrant farm workers. She lives in Penngrove.

The 18-year-old candidate in the Seventh Assembly District is Joseph J. Franaszek of Tiburon. A student at the University of California at Berkeley, he was an unsuccessful candidate in last November's election in the Richardson Bay Sanitary District.

Also filing yesterday for the assembly seat held by William T. Bagley of San Rafael was Bill Mack Webber of the Peace and Freedom Party. He turned in candidacy papers in Santa Rosa.

Incumbent Bagley will be challenged in the primary by Robert D. Weinmann of San Rafael, an insurance company sales manager, and Edward J. Gilmore of Ross, also an insurance company executive. In the Democratic primary, Franaszek will vie with Harry J. Moore of Novato, a junior high school principal.

Unconditional Troop Pullout—McGovern

First Time Vietnam POW Question Severed

MIAMI (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota proposed today for the first time an unconditional pullout of American forces from Vietnam, reserving only the right to pursue legal sanctions, including military action, if North Vietnam refuses to release U.S. prisoners of war.

It was the first time that McGovern — or any of the candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination — had severed, to even a slight degree, the question of bringing American troops home from Vietnam from the issue of freeing the U.S. POW's and account for those missing in action.

McGovern unveiled his new initiative in a speech prepared for delivery to a Florida state meeting of relatives of those Americans taken prisoner in Vietnam and those listed as missing in action. The speech was scheduled for a noon meeting at McCoy Air Force Base near Orlando.

McGovern's speech came as the candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination in the year's second primary went into the final stages of the campaign in preparation for Tuesday's vote. With the exception of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who continued to comb the mid-section of Florida for votes, the candidates concentrated on the vote-rich area around Miami, Tampa and the state's other larger cities.

Aides to McGovern acknowledged that his statement at McCoy AFB represented a slight shift in his position, which until today called for the setting of a date for the withdrawal of U.S. forces tied to a release of the POWs. They contended, however, that the shift was one of sanctions— instead of halting the pullout if the prisoners were not freed. The McGovern proposal would encompass other American initiatives, including force, if North Vietnam held on to the POWs.

In pursuit of the twin goals of releasing the prisoners and safely withdrawing the U.S. forces, McGovern said, "I would immediately announce that we are withdrawing all of our land, sea and air forces from Indochina within 90 days and that we are releasing our embrace of the Thieu regime in South Vietnam."

The South Dakota senator said these steps would put the United States in a position of insisting on compliance with the Geneva convention which provides for release and repatriation "without delay" of POWs after cessation of hostilities.

"And the other side would know that we would be wholly within our rights to back up that insistence with appropriate international legal sanctions and, in the extreme case? military action," he said.

"This is not a proposed negotiating position," he added. "I do not propose it in exchange for a promise of prisoner release. Instead, it is a planned course of action which I fully intend to carry out."

With four days to go before Florida voters cast their ballots, the activities of the candidates went like this:

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington placed a conference call to 15 cities designed to spur a get-out-the-vote drive. Friday, he predicted that he might edge Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Mus- kie for second place—behind Wallace—in Tuesday's voting.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota told 300 students at the University of South Florida in Tampa that he would order American troops out of South Vietnam 10 days after he is inaugurated.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, following Humphrey at the University of Florida, attacked Wallace, charging that

Girl, 13, Killed In Hit-Run

The 13-year-old daughter of former San Francisco 49ers football player Robert A. Toneff was killed by a hit-run auto today near her home in Sleepy Hollow.

California Highway Patrol officers arrested a 19-year-old San Anselmo youth found sitting behind the wheel of his stalled, battered car a short distance away from the death scene. Officers said the youth, Robert Brian England of 13 Angela Avenue, San Anselmo, may have been under the influence of glue fumes.

The girl, Alene Toneff, of 18 Dutch Valley Lane, apparently was killed instantly at 12:45 a.m. when struck by the northbound car while she was walking on Butterfield Road. She was pronounced dead at Marin General Hospital.

Officers learned there was a car parked on Legend Road, with major damage to its front end. They said they found England behind the wheel. Another youth was standing in front of the car with the hood open, trying to start it, when officers arrived.

The unidentified youth fled into the darkness, officers said, and had not been found by midmorning. The car was England's, investigators reported.

England was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of felony hit-run driving, vehicular manslaughter and causing injury while driving under the influence of glue fumes. He remained in custody in lieu of $1,000 bail, to appear Monday for arraignment in Marin Municipal Court.

Young England is the son of Robert Park England, former chairman of the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission.

Highway patrol officers said they were still investigating the fatal accident, and would turn a completed report over to the district attorney's office tomorrow or Monday.

She is survived by her father, who starred more than 14 years for National Football League

Striking Southern Pacific Rail Workers Comply; Back To Jobs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Eight thousand Southern Pacific switchmen and engineers complied with a federal judge's order today by returning to work after a surprise strike that shut down the railroad's operations from Seattle, Wash., to El Paso, Tex.

The walkout was touched off by a dispute over elimination of some rail yard jobs.

The United Transportation Union set up picket lines at yards and offices throughout the area served by SP's Pacific lines and about 20,000 clerical and office workers refused to cross the lines.

U.S. District Court Robert C. Peckham issued an injunction ordering an immediate end to the strike and prohibiting SP from laying off any workers until a hearing March 20.

The railroad contended that "herder" jobs in rail yards were being eliminated under terms of a new rail workers contract which ended a nationwide strike last summer and was ratified by the union in January.

However, George Lechner, union vice president, said the job cuts were "contrary to a commitment" he said was made by SP President Benjamin Biaggini during the negotiations.

SP attorneys argued that the new contract provides for settlement of such disputes by mediation, but Lechner said the union has been unable to get the railroad to start such talks. He said several hundred jobs were at stake.

"They already have laid off 12 men, and eight more would have lost their jobs Monday. That's why we acted today (Friday)," Lechner said.

An Attack Shortly After Cease-Fire

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A British patrol was attacked near Newry today only one hour after the militant "provision" wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) ordered a three-day cease-fire to give the British government time to work on a plan to end the violence.

An army spokesman said two small mines exploded under two army vehicles patrolling outside the border town of Newry, about 40 miles south of Belfast, shortly after 1 a.m. (8 p.m. EST) yesterday.

Senate Group Asks Bangladesh Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has passed a resolution calling on the administration to grant diplomatic recognition to Bangladesh.

The resolution, still to be acted on by the full Senate, would express the sympathy and understanding of the lawmakers for the people of Bangladesh and urge the White House to extend recognition rapidly.

Upper Echelon Span Board Fuss Erupts

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The problem broke into the open despite extraordinary efforts by district directors to keep it behind closed doors.

The district's engineer, Robert E. Shields, declined to comment on confirmed reports that he had been about to resign to take a job elsewhere. He and other top staff officials denied reports that personality conflicts were involved.

The problem, it is said, however, stems from disputes over overlapping powers of the top staff, and a three-member special committee was named by the board to resolve the problem.

After offering conflicting explanations, district directors locked the doors while they met for a half-hour, excluding all staff members except Shields and their legal adviser, David J. Miller. Shields reportedly was convinced that chain of command and job responsibilities would be defined more clearly by the special committee — and that he should stay on the job.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring, asked to comment, said that "anytime you get heavy workloads and tight deadlines, you've got problems." But he said he knew nothing about the possibility Shields would resign.

It is an open secret that Shields and bus transit manager H. Donald White have differed with one another over work on the bus terminals, but Shields said White's name did not come up during the closed session.

White said "there is no conflict between Shields' responsibilities and mine, or personally between the two of us." But he acknowledged that "there have been some misunderstandings on jurisdiction."

Top district officials excluded from the session were in the dark about the meeting's purpose, and huddled outside in the hallway wondering aloud what it was all about.

Board president Lowell Edington of Napa County, called the secret session, explaining only that it dealt with "a personnel matter." He refused to elaborate, despite reminders by newsmen that the state's anti-secret meeting law allows closed meetings generally only to hire, fire or hear charges against an officer or employee.

But a different explanation was offered by meeting participants after the 27-minute session was reopened to the public. Miller, the district's legal adviser, reported the meeting had dealt with "possible establishment of a new position," and that a special committee of three directors had been named to look into the matter.

The state's antisecret meeting law, however, provides no such excuse for a closed-door meeting. Miller assured complaining newsmen that the was "prepared to defend" his finding that the closed door session was allowed by the state law, the Ralph M. Brown Act.

Yet a third hint about the purpose of the meeting came in a comment by director Daniel F. Del Carlo of San Francisco, who referred to the purpose as "a personnel problem."

Director Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley said after the meeting that it dealt with "growing pains."

Appointed to the special committee were San Francisco Supervisors Peter Tamaras and John Molinari and San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini.

Victim Of Slaying Had Marin Ties

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A teen-aged girl found strangled in a rural area near here last Sunday has been identified as an employee of a Larkspur health food store and the daughter of a Mill Valley man.

The nude body of Kim Wendy Allen, 19, a student at Santa Rosa Junior College, was discovered down a ravine south of the city by two young motorcyclists, according to the Sonoma County Sheriff's Department.

The girl had been raped and strangled with a cord or wire about midnight last Saturday, the Sonoma County Coroner's office reported, but remained unidentified until Thursday when her roommates in Santa Rosa reported her missing.

Miss Allen was last seen about 5 p.m. last Friday when she left her job at Larkspur Natural Foods at 460 Magnolia Avenue and told coworkers she planned to hitchike to Santa Rosa.

Sheriff's Lt. Charles Kisbaugh said the department was working on the theory the murderer may have injured himself when he threw the body into the ravine. A mark at the top of the embankment where Miss Allen was found indicated someone may have slipped and fallen.

A native of Oakland, Miss Allen had lived in Sonoma County for four years.

She is survived by her father, Kimball W. Allen of Mill Valley; her mother, Mrs. Roberta Allen of Oakland; a sister, Annilee D. Shannon of San Rafael, and a half-brother, Robert Stevens of Oakland.

Memorial service was held today in Santa Rosa. Burial will be private.

The space agency announced yesterday that Medical Director Charles A. Berry had recommended that Slayton be returned to full flight status.

Slayton, 48, is the only one of the seven original Mercury astronauts not to have flown in space. He was grounded March 15, 1962 — two months before he was to follow John H. Glenn into orbit on the nation's second earth orbital Mercury mission.

At Camp David

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon rested at his Camp David mountain retreat today with notes he took during a top-level conference on busing to achieve school desegregation.

Nixon will work through tomorrow on a statement on busing that could form the basis for part of his re-election platform.

The statement, however, will not be issued until after Florida's presidential primary Tuesday. One of the questions on the Florida ballot is whether the electorate favors a constitutional amendment to stop busing.

Date For Pandas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The two giant pandas China promised President Nixon are expected to arrive in the United States about April 1.

The White House gave the approximate date yesterday and said the animals were expected to be shipped by an Air Force cargo aircraft.

A White House spokesman said no decision had been made on which zoo will get the pandas. They will be among the only four giant pandas outside China. There is one in Moscow and one in London.

Guilty Of Murder

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla (UPI) — With two of the jurors in tears after the verdict, a circuit court jury yesterday found Ben Chaney Jr. guilty of murder in the slaying of two Florida Atlantic University coeds in 1970.

The 12-member jury recommended mercy for Chaney, 19, the brother of slain civil rights worker James Chaney of Mississippi. Sentencing was put off until later.

Paris To Be Scene Of U.S.-China Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A State Department official has expressed confidence that American-Chinese negotiations in Paris for trade, travel and cultural exchange agreements will bring concrete results.

"There is no question it will be carried out," said Assistant Secretary of State John Richardson Jr. of the program of exchanges agreed to in principle during President Nixon's visit to China. But Richardson cautioned the program of contacts "is not likely to develop rapidly."

The White House announced Friday that Paris had been selected for negotiations on details of the exchanges. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the talks would start in a matter of days and would be conducted by the two nations' ambassadors in Paris, Arthur K. Watson of the United States and Huang Chen of China, who is a member of the ruling Communist Central Committee of China.

Ziegler said there was no connection with the fact that Paris also is the site for the Vietnam peace negotiations.

The spokesman for President Nixon said the first meeting would deal with "how to proceed." Thereafter, he said, the ambassadors would meet "every time significant matters come up."

Watson was scheduled to arrive back in Paris today after consultations in Washington. During a 24-hour period in Washington he met with Nixon, Secratary of State William P. Rogers and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, White House foreign affairs adviser.

Ziegler said the Paris contact "does not close other channels" between the United States and China.

During his trip to China in late February, Nixon agreed with Chinese leaders to trade, travel and cultural exchange contacts. The two nations also decided to maintain diplomatic contacts below the level of formal relations.

Ziegler said the Paris location was chosen "primarily because it was felt it would be a mutually convenient location."

The United States maintains a large embassy in Paris which has a resident Asian specialist on its staff. The State Department planned tentatively to send to Paris one or two supplementary specialists for the actual meetings.

Peking already has used Paris as the site for negotiating a number of the recent diplomatic recognitions of communist China. Huang has directed these negotiations.

State Department officials said Friday that Chinese officials apparently were briefing their Communist allies about the Nixon visit to Peking, just as the United States has been briefing its allies.

However, Charles W. Bray, a department spokesman, said he was unable to confirm reports that Chinese Premier Chou En-lai visited Hanoi to brief North Vietnamese officials about the Nixon visit.

Challenges By Angela Due Monday

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)— Angela Davis' murder-kidnap-conspiracy trial was in recess yesterday, allowing attorneys for both sides a long weekend breather from the arduous jury selection process.

The defense believes it has an advantage in the panel's composition because the prosecution Thursday was forced to use two of its 20 peremptory challenges by which a juror can be dismissed without cause.

A tentative jury of nine women and three men was seated Thursday when defense attorney Leo Branton said he would accept the panel, a maneuver that put the next move in the hands of Albert W. Harris Jr., an assistant state attorney general.

Harris could have accepted the jury, in which case opening statements would be made and testimony begin. However, the chief prosecutor chose to dismiss two women panelists and two new names were called — both men.

Branton said he knew Harris was not prepared to accept the jury and believes the defense now has the advantage because it still has 20 peremptory challenges to the state's 18.

The two men drawn must now be questioned for cause, a process that will occur each time a panelist is dismissed and another seated.

Miss Davis's attorneys will presumably begin using their challenges Monday.

One woman dismissed by the prosecution was Mrs. Peter Ruth, a housewife who told the court she "never heard of Angela Davis" nor the Marin County shootings of 1970 for which Miss Davis is accused of supplying the guns.

Election Violence

CALCUTTA (UPI) — Four persons were reported killed and 20 injured today in outbreaks of violence during state government elections in West Bengal state.

$242 Report — The Major Key To ITT Settlement

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government paid $242 for a report that persuaded the Justice Department to settle out of court the largest antitrust case in history— involving corporations worth more than $1 billion.

The Commerce Department in a statement filed with the Senate Judiciary Committee Friday said Richard Ramsden, a Wall Street economic consultant, spent two working days on the report and received $242 for the services.

Ramsden's report was a key factor in the antitrust division's decision last July 31 tg drop its suit against the merger of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. and the Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

The Judiciary Committee is investigating that decision to determine if it had any relationship with a reported $400,000 offer by ITT to underwrite the Republican National Convention. The administration has denied any connection and Attorney General-designate Richard Kleindienst defended the ITT-Hartford settlement Friday as "one of the great chapters in antitrust history."

The settling of the antitrust suit was linked to the underwriting of the Republican convention by a memo published by columnist Jack Anderson and attributed to Mrs. Dita D. Beard, an ITT lobbyist.

In Denver, where she is undergoing treatment for a heart condition, Mrs. Beard denied ITT made the alleged deal with the Justice Department. She also denied that former Attorney General John Mitchell took part in the final ITT suit settlement, and she called the Senate committee hearings "an absurd circus."

All But 15 State Legislators, Representatives File Papers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — All but 15 of California's legislators and representatives up for election this year have filed candidacy papers for another term, but there were critical Republican defections from the Assembly.

In all, 20 offices, including five new congressional seats, will not have incumbents listed on the ballot this year.

By Friday—the last day to file for election—nine of the Assembly's 36 GOP members had decided to seek other offices or had retired.

The departures played hob with Republican hopes of gaining control of the Assembly, which currently had a 43-36 Democratic majority with one vacancy.

In Congress, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-San Mateo, gave up his presidential campaign and filed for another term in the House.

He may face stiff primary election opposition from two GOP candidates regarded as more conservative than himself. They are former New York Congressman Robert R. Barry of Woodside, who McCloskey has defeated in the past, and Dr. Royce M. Cole of Palo Alto, a school board member wno has been active in Republican politics in Santa Clara County.

One of the main reasons for the lack of incumbents in 20 of the 143 offices up for grabs this year was the creation of five new House seats. Califgrnia received the additional representation as the result of its population growth during the 1960s.

Five assemblymen have been lured away from the Capitol by the hope of being elected to Congress. One senator, whose seat is not up for election this year, is also running for the House.

State legislators receive $19,200 annually compared to $42,500 for a representative.

Assemblymen seeking new congressional seats include: William M. Ketchum, R-Paso Robles; Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame, and Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los -Angeles. Sen. Clair W. Burgener, R-San Diego, is also running for a new seat.

Retiring legislators are: Republican Assemblymen Frank P. Belotti of Eureka and James W. Dent of Concord, and Sen. Stephen P. Teale, D-Rail Road Flat.

Republican Assemblymen William Campbell of Hacienda Heights, and James A. Hayes of Long Beach are running for separate seats on the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

Campbell will face primary opposition from a former Assembly colleague, Peter F. Schabarum, who recently was appointed to the board by Gov.. Ronald Reagan. Sen. Lawrence E. Walsh, D-Huntington Park, whose seat is not up for election this year, is also in that nonpartisan local race.

Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, has announced he will seek the seat formerly held by Sen. Gordon Cologne, R-Indio, who was appointed to a judgeship by Reagan.

122 Candidates Make The Deadline

District, incumbent Republican William S. Mailliard of San Francisco will be unchallenged in his party's primary. Democratic candidates are San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas and Alan D. French of San Francisco, a 25-year-old Army veteran.

The biggest field in the three Marin county supervisorial contests is in the Fourth Supervisorial District, where incumbent Louis H. Baar is not seeking reelection. In addition to Saccomanno, four others are running: attorney Gary Giacomini of Woodacre, and three San Rafael residents, James Dougan, Michael R. Peevey, a lobbyist and research director for the California Labor Federation, and Miss Maginnis, a laboratory technician.

In the Second Supervisorial District, incumbent Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., a stockbroker, is being challenged by Barbara Boxer, a Greenbrae housewife, and Dr. William J. Filante of Kentfield.

In the Third Supervisorial District, incumbent Michael Wornum, a planner and architect, is being challenged by Rev. Samuel L. Banks Jr., chairman of the Marin City Council and pastor of Village Baptist Church in Marin City.

Four incumbent judges are seeking election to six-year terms, but only Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner is being challenged. His opponent is San Rafael attorney Charles R. Best.

The other three incumbent, unopposed judges are Superior Court judges Henry J. Broderick and Joseph G. Wilson and Municipal Court Judge David Menary Jr.

In Division 2 of the Marin Municipal Water District, incumbent John M. MacPhail Jr. is being challenged by his aunt, Vera M. McPhail, both of San Rafael.

In the water district's Division 5, three are seeking the seat of retiring director Robert G. Anderson. They are his son, Robert G. Anderson Jr., Ronald T. Stafford and Willard A. Hall, all of Sausalito.

In the Novato Sanitary District, incumbents Edwin V. Grundstrom and Carlos B. Rivamonte face a challenge from Leroy Jr. Syrop for two seats. All live in Novato.

In the Ross Valley Sanitary District, four persons, including two incumbents, are seeking two board seats. They are incumbents Ray Irwin Johnson and Peter A. Ribar and challengers Roger Bockrath and Joan Seminario, all of Kentfield.

For lack of filings, no elections will be held in the Almonte or Homestead Valley sanitary districts, for three of four judicial seats, in either the Peace and Freedom or American Independent parties' county central committees, or in several of the supervisorial districts for the Republican and Democratic central committees.

In the case of the Peace and Freedom and American Independent parties, no one filed at all, thus both central committees will remain defunct.

Rodgers C. Broomhead of Kentfield, chairman of the Marin County Republican Central Committee, did not file for re-election to the committee.

LAW IN ACTION

That Check's Not Any Good

If someone forges your name on a check, that check is no good. The bank can't charge your account for "making the check" i you call it to their attention right away. If the check is made out to you, a forged endorsement gives the person who cashes it no rights.

This doesn't mean you can always easily recover your money. The remedy may be against the forger, who may be in jail or in some far off place or without funds to repay you.

Take the recent case of Irma, a pedestrian who was injured in an accident. She asked a boy friend to help her negotiate a release and settlement of her claim against the other party in the accident. Irma's boy friend handled all the negotiations and it was agreed that $5,000 was a fair settlement.

A check for $5,000 was made out to Irma and handed to her boy friend. He forged her name, cashed it and disappeared. After several months, Irma sued the insrance company for her $5,000.

Irma lost. She had designated her boy friend as her agent for negotiating the settlement. Irma would have to collect from her boy friend, not the insurance company.

While a bank has the duty to know the signatures of its depositors, it has no special knowledge of the signatures of its depositors, it has no special knowledge of the signatures of payees or endorsees.

If a check is lost or stolen and then forged, the payee usually can still require the maker of the check to issue another one. But the payee's own negligence cy bar any recovery except against the thief. If the check is lost and not yet cashed, the payee can request stop payment on the check and have another issued.

The merchant who is careless in not knowing his endorser, or the person who allows a dishonest manager or bookkeeper to issue or fill in blanks on checks is required to take his own losses. A depositor's failure to check his bank statements or to detect forgeries or alterations also bars a claim against the bank.

Purim Pageant Slated Monday

Purim Pageant '72, a traditional Jewish celebration, will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Spangler Hall, Mill Valley First Baptist Church.

The pageant, a series of monologues with musical selections interlaced, is the story of a nation threatened with genocide because of a conspiracy of a small group of persons in early Persia. Although the theme is serious, the mode of presentation is humorous.

Steffi Geiser of San Francisco will direct the production, and the actors will be a group of students from Simpson's Bible College in San Francisco.

Cases Are Bound To Superior Court

Gregory Carl Brown, 20, of Berkeley, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of car theft and grand theft.

Brown is accused of taking a car from Dexter Toyota in Marin — on the pretext of test driving it — and not returning it. He was arrested in the Midwest with another car reportedly stolen in California.

Saigon Units Ready For North Push

SAIGON (UPI)—A 20,000-man South Vietnamese force backed by tanks, jets and field guns fought its way across the dusty plains of eastern Cambodia today in an effort to cut off three elusive North Vietnamese divisions reported massing for a push into South Vietnam.

In air action, U.S. warplanes struck into North Vietnam for the 11th straight day, the longest string of attacks since strategic bombing of the north was halted 3 1-2 years ago.

Meanwhile it was reported in Phnom Penh, that Prime Minister Lon Nol dissolved parliament and took full control of the government yesterday to avert a possible coup by members of the National Assembly, political sources said today.

Earlier in the day, the Country's chief of state, Cheng Heng, resigned and turned over full power to Lon Nol.

Military sources said the two-pronged South Vietnamese drive, the deepest thrust into Cambodia in four months, was aimed at stopping as many as 30,000 Communist troops from getting within striking distance of Saigon.

An initial force of 15,000 South Vietnamese soldiers rumbled across the border Thursday along Highway 7 into Cambodia's rubber country, 75 miles northwest of Saigon.

About 5,000 more men pushed across the frontier Friday along Highway 1 into Cambodia's Parrot's Beak region, 36 miles to the south.

Military sources said the northern column, advancing along bumpy, red-dirt Highway 7, battled Communists at sundown Friday 30 miles from the border in the first sizable clash of the drive. The sources withheld details for security reasons.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command said an Air Force F105 Thunderchief jet fired a missile at an antiaircraft site in North Vietnam 16 miles above the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) after Communist radar homed in on American planes bombing in nearby Laos.

Bagley Named To National School Panel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, has been appointed to represent the California Legislature on a new 15-member committee of state legislators throughout the nation that will study school financing.

The special committee on school finance of the National Legislative Conference will hold its first meeting on March 24 in Denver.

Steering Group Studies Finances

A citizens steering committee recently formed by the Tamalpais High School District board has decided to concentrate its initial efforts on school financing.

Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins said the decision was made Wednesday at a workshop meeting with the board during which the problems of the district were discussed.

Bolinas Trustees To Discuss Budget

A tentative budget for fiscal 1972-73 will be discussed Monday night at a meeting of Bolinas School District trustees, to be held at 8 p.m. at Bolinas School.

Trustees also will discuss a student-teacher-parent group's summary of philosophy and goals for the district and will review a 1966 engineering study of district property.

BOARD

Edington told newsmen later that some staff had been asked to leave the room because "it was just one of those matters that didn't need them."

No dat was set for the special committee to meet or to report to the board.

Golden Gate Bridge District board also:

COORDINATOR — Referred back to committee for further study Luehring's proposed hiring of a coordinator to handle voluminous paper work required for federal grants, his monthly salary set at $1,325. The hiring would save the district "at least $1,000 a day" by speeding paper work on pending grants, according to director Stephan C. Leonoudakis, but others insisted it needed more committee study.

SAN RAFAEL — Received a report from staff that the district's assessment in a special district to improve the area of its San Rafael bus base bad gone from $3,000 to $13,000 an acre because bids were far higher than estimated. With 10 acres at the base, the cost would be $130,000 for streets, drainage and sewage to be financed by the assessment district.

ROUNDHOUSE — Voted to close the Roundhouse Restaurant at the toll plaza in 30 days, citing declining patronage and a need for more office space.

DRYDOCKING — Approved drydocking the Sausalito ferry early next month at a maximum cost of $10,000.

BUSES — Received a report from Luehring that 11,632 district buses crossed the bridge during February, compared to 9,650 Greyhound buses during February of last year.

BOOKS — Received a report that commuter books for span tickets totaled 10,018 in February, down 26.21 per cent from the sales figure for February last year.

ACCIDENT — Received a report that two passengers in a district bus were injured in a traffic accident in San Francisco on Tuesday.

FARES — Referred to committee a proposal by Luehring that one-way cash fares on the Sausalito ferry be hiked from 50 to 75 cents to match the district's bus fare from Sausalito to San Francisco. Discount ticket books still would leave the cost at 50 cents.

the Alabama governor cannot win the Democratic presidential nomination and "cannot carry out a single promise he has made in this campaign."

Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York said the Nixon administration "paid off its friends in the lumber industry by abandoning plans to restrict wholesale logging in federal forests" and added "by some abscure perversion of priorities, President Nixon, who talks about law and order, is rewarding the very men who are robbing the nation of its future."

Although Nixon is rated a favorite to win the GOP primary and snare the state's delegates, Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio predicted he would win 20 per cent of the vote. In Menlo Park, Calif., Rep. Paul N. McCloskey said he was pulling out as an active candidate but would remain on the ballot in Florida, and nine other states as a "symbolic" protest to Nixon's Vietnam policy.

Hearing Set On Auto Theft

Stephen Arthur McDevitt, 20, has been charged in Marin Municipal Court with car theft in connection with a new car taken from his fathar, a car dealer.

The elder McDevitt is fleet manager for DeLong Chevrolet in San Rafael.

Burglary Count Is Dismissed

A burglary charge aginst a Waldo Point man found cooking a steak inside a closed restaurant last September has been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court because of the man's mental state at the time.

Ned B. Pearson, 29, subsequently committed to Napa State Hospital after being judged insane.

Special Session On Environmental Plan

The Petaluma City Council will consider methods to carry out the environmental design plan at a special meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The plan updates the 1962 general plan and limits community growth to 500 new living units per year. As one method of controlling growth, it has been suggested that the city have a one-month "open season" in which developers could submit all building plans for the next year. A special committee could be named to select which developments would be approved.

Elks Order Eligible For State Tax Break

The Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, charged by some with discriminatory membership policies, is eligible for state tax breaks, the Marin County Human Rights Commission has been told by the commission's executive director.

Executive Director Gerald J. Hood said the commission agreed to seek outside legal help in determining if such tax benefits are contrary to state policy on groups that discriminate.

The San Rafael Elks Lodge, for example, last year was granted a $501 exemption on property taxes paid on its inventory of liquor and other supplies, Hood said.

While the lodge's exemption doesn't represent great monetary loss to the state, he continued, it does if the inventory exemption is applied to private lodges statewide.

He said the "fundamental issue" is whether the inventory exemption by the state amounts to aiding membership discrimination by fraternal organizations.

He said the commission's decision to seek legal assistance is aimed at researching the law to determine if it does.

On other matters at its meeting Thursday night, the commission discussed a letter from Commissioner Barbara Hosmer charging the California Schoolmaster's Club — which met in Oakland Wednesday night — with discriminating against women.

The club is a social organization of male educators who meet once a year to discuss professional interests.

Guilty Plea To An Old Drug Charge

A former Marin man, now serving a 10-year sentence in a federal penitentiary in connection with a huge cache of stolen arms, has pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to an old narcotics charge.

Charles Noell Hess, 29, formerly of Forest Knolls, is to be sentenced in superior court Monday.

He admitted that he possessed cocaine for sale in connection with a drug bust in Tamalpais Valley in September 1970, when agents made arrangements to buy 230 ounces of cocaine.

Hess disappeared shortly after that arrest and a bench warrant was issued for him in Marin.

A few months ago he was picked up in the Santa Cruz area and charged with receiving a large number of machine guns, rifles and handguns stolen from the Santa Cruz armory after it was bombed last summer.

Last month, Hess, who had sold a few of the guns, pleaded guilty in federal court and was sent to prison.

Another man arrested with him in the Tamalpais Valley raid, Robert Pemberton Jr., 22, of Palo Alto, was sent to jail for 90 days for his part in the cocaine enterprise.

Two others, Ronald J. Wishart of Mill Valley and Anthony Guillory of Tamalpais Valley, were released after a preliminary hearing.

Panthers To Give Out Free Food

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Black Panther Party says it will give 10,000 free bags of groceries to "oppressed people" at a Community Survival Conference this month.

The groceries, "with a chicken in every bag" will be only part of the program, Panther Chairman Bobby Seale said Thursday. He said volunteers would also administer 10,000 sickle cell animia tests and that they would register thousands of people to vote.

Seale said the conference, scheduled March 29-31, would include Angela Davis, Berkeley Congressman Ron Dellums, and Julian Bond, a Georgia state Senator.

Bill Would Lift Abortion Restrictions

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill that would allow abortions to be performed in any hospital with adequate facilities that is licensed by the state was introduced Thursday in the Senate.

The measure by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Bervly Hills, would remove the present restriction limiting abortions to hospitals accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, a private organization.

Girl, 19, Picked As Jury Foreman

REDWOOD CITY (UPI)—A 19-year-old girl has been selected as the first under-21 jury foreman in California.

A San Mateo County jury Thursday chose Debra Hermone, 19, South San Francisco, foreman in a civil case involving false prescriptions. Miss Hermone is a clerk at Greyhound Bus Lines.

Kentfield Trustees To Make Teacher Decision

The Kentfield School District board, which has been agonizing over notifying some teachers they may be released, will make a final decision at its regular meeting Monday, according to Supt. Anthony G. Bacich.

The board also will hear a report about a meeting Tuesday at which trustees from the Kentfield and Ross school districts recommended their boards consider sharing facilities.

A decision must be made by Wednesday to notify teachers they might be dismissed in June, but a decision to actually fire teachers doesn't have to be made for another month, Bacich said.

Appointments To Commission To Be Studied

The Fairfax City Council will consider making three appointments to its parks and recreation commission when the council meets at 8 p.m. Monday at the Fairfax Women's Club.

The terms of Joseph E. Martinez, Leo Cronin and Roman Hasinski are expiring.

The council Monday also is scheduled to review proposed fees for Sausalito architect Donald K. Olsen to prepare plans for the second phase of the city facilities renewal program. The plans call for construction of a new fire station and demolition of part of the present station, leaving the rest of it for additional police department space.

Dates Of Season

The San Francisco Ballet's season will continue at the Palace of Fine Arts Theater in San Francisco through April 29. The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in a review of the ballet in reporting the season would end March 29.

Felony Drug Charges Filed

Pamela Lee Kidwell, 27, of 5 Ross Street, San Rafael, has been charged in Marin Municipal Court with felony counts of possessing cocaine and marijuana, as well as a misdemeanor charge of drunken driving.

She was arrested about 2 a.m. Thursday by California Highway Patrol officers on Highway 101. A search of her purse produced drugs.

She is to return to court Thursday to plead to the charges.

Park Service Hit On Seashore Plan

The National Park Service made "a serious error" when it drew the boundaries for Point Reyes National Seashore and excluded the Inverness Ridge, a Marin County supervisor has charged.

Board chairman Peter R. Arrigoni, in a letter to the park service, said, therefore, any consideration of diverting $1.9 million from the Seashore's acquisition fund "would be premature" until the ridge is acquired.

The federal government has maintained that the funds are "surplus" to the needs of the 64,000-acre park and should be diverted for use at the Lincoln Home National Historic site in Illinois.

Arrigoni differs, however. "Acquisition of this ridge is essential to preserve the physical integrity of the park," he wrote, adding that private easement rights over three roads within the park also should be acquired.

The ridge and other areas adjacent to the park near Inverness are under pressure from developers. Conservationists have demanded special county planning to restrict growth in the area.

Hospital Errs

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zielinski of Petaluma are the parents of a son born Wednesday at Hillcrest Hospital and not a daughter, as reported by the hospital to the Independent-Journal.

Marin City Substation Fired Upon

Five rounds of high-powered ammunition were fired at the Marin City Sheriff's substation today, according to deputies.

The shooting began at 5:14 a.m. and ended about five minutes later, officers said. They said they believed two shots landed behind a patrol car parked in front of the station, and the other three went into a grove of eucalyptus trees behind the car.

Deputies said they believed the shots came from a small commercial area of the community known as the "the front" about 500 yards away.

When the firing started, other sheriff's units were notified, and nine patrol cars converged on the substation. The culprits were not found, officers said.

Deputies said the firing occurs quite often near the substation, and has been taking place "about every other day" recently. Although they said most of the firing was individuals testing their weapons, incidents of firing on the substation have been increasing.

Bill Would Put Lid On Movers

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Moving companies could not charge more than 10 per cent over the estimate they gave the consumer under legislation which has been introduced.

The bill introduced Thursday by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, would apply to all household goods carriers.

Orr Disciplining Idea Is Admitted

By PAT ANGLE

A Fairfax city councilman who opposed the firing of Police Chief James R. Orr said under cross examination last night that he had recommended disciplinary action against the chief after hearing the charges against him.

Councilman Francis J. O'Connell, a witness for the defense, was the only person who testified at the 28th session of a Fairfax Board of Review hearing of an appeal by the fired police chief.

The councilman also testified that he had concluded the man who replaced Orr as chief had been "behind" the charges brought against the chief. And O'Connell reacted heatedly to a Fairfax patrolman's charge that he had lied in testimony at Monday's session of the hearing.

In answer to a question by City Atty. Wallace S. Myers, O'Connell conceded he had proposed Orr's salary be reduced and that he be placed on probation during the second of three closed hearings before the dismissal.

But the councilman stressed he made the suggestion because he did not think the firing was appropriate at that time. "I thought the council should determine what the problems were in the department and how to correct them and then give the chief time to shape up or ship out," O'Connell said.

The councilman denied an implication by Myers that his fellow Councilman Frank J. Egger had offered during the closed session to make a deal with other council members. Myers asked if Egger had said he would vote for Orr's firing if the other councilmen would vote to dismiss two other department heads (Street Supt. Edgar Phillips and Building and Zoning Inspector Dale Hostrup).

O'Connell contended that Egger had been speaking facetiously, meaning that Orr was no worse than the city's other department heads.

In answer to a question by the city attorney, the councilman admitted he had said "Grasso's (Lt. Charles Grasso who replaced Orr) behind this" after hearing charges against Orr presented by City Administrator Robert E. Crowe at the closed session.

"What really bothered me was that almost everything in those charges happened long before Mr. Crowe was city administrator," O'Connell told the review board. "I kept asking him (Crowe) how he was such an expert on these things and he kept saying 'Grasso told me.'"

O'Connell became emotional when Myers mentioned a statement by Fairfax patrolman James Davis, printed in Thursday's Independent-Journal, that the councilman had lied Monday by saying Davis had told him he would not testify at the appeal hearings.

"Nobody's ever called me a liar," O'Connell said loudly, "and I expect the city administrator to take some action before the next council meeting on a patrolman who is calling a city councilman a liar.

"I swear to God, on a stack of Bibles and I'll take a lie detector test and swear he (Davis) came to my house and told me that," the councilman said in a near shout. "When I read that in the paper, my first thought was violence; I'm sorry for this patrolman if he's so worried about his job."

Myers asked O'Connell to whom he had referred Monday night when he suggested "somebody might have gotten to Davis."

"I firmly believe somebody asked him to change his mind about testifying," the councilman said. "Who?" asked the city attorney.

"I think you're sitting right next to him, but I can't prove it," O'Connell said, referring to city administrator Crowe.

The hearings will continue at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Leonard Shaw, Orr's attorney, said he hopes to conclude the defense at that time. Orr was fired for alleged improper conduct, including engaging in social activity with police clerk Marsha Kittelman and drunkenness on and off duty.

All were booked on a charge of suspicion of kidnaping. Deputy District Attorney John Jarvis said the two adults would be arraigned Monday on a charge of kidnaping.

AND A PERFECT FIT, TOO

Mrs. Paul Madden (left) has spent much of the past two weeks at her sewing machine, and two of the results are the hostess gowns worn by her daughter, Mary Jo, (center) and Kathi Eckels (right). The gowns and 18 more like them were made to be worn by the hostesses at a fashion show luncheon to benefit Young Life of Marin next Saturday at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo. After the flocked fabric was chosen a full length style that all could wear was designed, and each hostess was to make her own dress. But Mrs. Madden discovered some did not even sew and eventually she ended up cutting all 20 and making 10. To give the dresses an individual look each girl designed her own belt. Kathy holds Mary Jo's ribbon belt as they select lace trim. (Independent-Journal photo)

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

New Owners For Landmark House

By MOLLY MARIN

The oldest home in Sausalito, built in 1869 and known as the Gardner House, has been purchased by the William Turnbulls of San Francisco, and they will be moving in in May.

Bill Turnbull is an architect with the William Turnbull Associates in San Francisco. His wife, Wendy, is the granddaughter of Paul B. Fay, formerly of Kentfield, the niece of Paul B. (Red) Fay Jr., former Undersecretary of the Navy, and great niece of the late opera singer, Maude Fay Symington, who founded the Marin Music Chest.

The Turnbulls' home is on two-thirds of an acre, and even though it is in the city, a creek runs through the property. Its last owner, William Roth of Ross, who is the principal owner of Ghirardelli Square in San Francisco, bought the house to save it from being torn down.

Part of the sale agreement is that no major exterior changes be made in the historical structure, which is featured in "Here Today," the Junior League's book on Bay Area landmarks.

MR. AND MRS. Gordon Pomfrey will be hosts at a farewell party for concert pianist Paul Palmer Sunday evening at their studio and residence in Mill Valley.

Palmer is leaving to work on a master's degree in music at Arizona State University.

An artist-student of Pomfrey, Palmer has appeared in many concerts in Marin, including those at Dominican College and the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley, and he presented a concert this week for the Carmel Foundation in the Chapel of the Wayfarer in Carmel.

Sunday evening he will play a short program of Rachmaninoff and Ravel compositions.

A reception was held afterward at the Hilton Inn in Oakland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emilo Maionchi of San Rafael and Lenore is the daughter of the Leo Freschis of Piedmont.

DIOR DOES DOTS

Included in the spring collection of the House of Dior in London is "Dior Dots." The gown is in red and white silk taffeta showing the new bare look at back, shoulders and midriff. The collection was shown in London this week. (UPI Telephoto)

Sunny Hills Guild Names New Officers

Mrs. Frank Folkmann, the new president of Mill Valley's Tamalpais Guild of Sunny Hills, says her major interest is sewing for Sunny Hills.

Guild members work a large part of the year making children's clothes to sell at the Grape Festival in October. This year they plan to make approximately 100 garments.

Cynthia Folkmann has beena member of the guild of two years. She works full time as a legal secretary for a law firm in San Francisco.

The guild has just completed its major fund-raiser for the year, a buffet dinner and performance of "See How They Run" at the Marin Art and Garden Center, and will have a luncheon later in the spring to honor new members.

A native of Oakland, Cynthia Folkmann was graduated with a B.S. degree from Occidental College. She and her husband, who is in the advertising business, have lived in Mill Valley 11 years and have a 7-year-old daughter, Hilary.

A Short, Simple Rite Performed

NEW YORK (UPI)—In this era of a trend to couples writing their own wedding vows, it's a sure bet none will come up with the super-simple marriage ceremony practiced by an oldtimer at a municipal marriage license bureau.

The man performing the ceremony asked the bridegroom: "You want to marry her?" The answer: "Yes." He asked the bride: "You want to marry him?" The bride answered "Yes."

The man vested with the powers of uniting a couple in wedlock then said: "You're married." And that was that.

Camping Club Will Meet Tomorrow

The Family Camping Club of the Marin YMCA will meet tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at the YMCA in San Rafael to discuss plans for a camping trip April 22 and 23 to Camp Alice Eastwood on Mount Tamalpais.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

A Twin That Doesn't Resent Being Just A Half Of A Pair

DEAR RAP:

When a twin writes to a column, he or she usually complains about twinhood. Isn't it time we heard something good about the relationship? So here's my version of "What Is A Twin Brother?"

A twin brother is someone who looks like you but he's aggressive and outgoing while you are quiet and shy.

He's the one who always thought of ways to get the two of you in trouble like the time we poured a box of soap powder into the washer and filled the laundry with suds.

He's the one who made you realize you weren't a double, but rather unique.

He's the person you shared the good times and bad with — double dates, your first car, falling in love with the same girl and both realizing she wasn't for you.

Through high school you were inseparable, but then came college. He stayed near home to be close to his steady. You went away and you drifted apart.

He's the one who tried to talk you out of quitting college, but you didn't listen. He laughed when you were drafted, but he wasn't really happy. When you left for Vietnam, he talked about the good times you'd have when you got back.

He's the guy who cried when you were wounded and heard you might never walk again. He's the one who came to the hospital every day to give you a boost. As soon as you could stand by yourself, he'd pull you out of bed and say, "Walk, damn you, walk!" Until you did!

A twin is a guy who never asks, "What did you do in the war?" because he knows you want to forget. When he finds you won a Silver Star, he doesn't ask why; he only nods when you say, "They gave Stars out to everyone that day," then he gets Dad aside and asks the details.

You're the first one to know he is going to marry the girl he's been dating since high school. At that moment both of you realize you'll never be as close again.

He's the one who asks you to be best man and forgets to send you a wedding invitation.

The relationship between twins is a very deep but very fragile kind of feeling. A twin knows your joys, hopes, fears, frustrations, your deepest thoughts — because he has them, too. He can rib you about your long hair and beard and membership in Veterans Against the War, but meanwhile he shares your intense st for the war.

The two of you have held a competition through all your lives. You've developed ideas and overcome prejudices together. You've shared your lives more thoroughly than ordinary brothers, yet you've remained yourselves.

But there is still one secret that neither of you will ever tell the other. That secret is the deep love and admiration you feel for your fellow twin.

As I sit here and write this letter, I'm reliving many of the experiences we shared. The relationship between twins can only be understood by twins. The bond that ties them together can never be broken —

GEMINI

DEAR GEMINI:

It's good to hear from a twin who doesn't resent being half of a pair, and who really likes his partner. Thanks for contributing a fine column!

Often, it seems, "those bonds that tie twins together" —are used as whips. — HELEN AND SUE

SEW SIMPLE

Check Fabric Any Place You Buy

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I am going on a trip to Europe this spring, and everyone cautions me about buying leathers, silks, etc. because they have an unpleasant odor. Is this true? I don't want to spend money on something I can't wear later.

MISS C.A.

DEAR MISS C.A.:

I think any ready-to-wear fabric must be closely examined whether it is purchased in this country or abroad. The things you purchase in foreign countries must be doubly evaluated because you can't just run back with your complaints.

From personal experience, I have bought suede garments from Spain, and oriental fabrics with no bad luck, but of course, the quality of merchandise anywhere is what you must look for.

When purchasing any fabrics abroad, be sure they are the width that you can work with and the correct length. (There is often not enough fabric to do much with when you return, which would be a waste of money.)

Also, remember that when you purchase fabric or ready-made clothes in foreign countries, it might be the type worn in that particular spot of the world, but wouldn't suit your purposes here at home. It has been my experience working with many women, that the fabrics they tote home from trips are usually the ones that clutter up their drawers and are never used. So a word to the wise, plan ahead and be sure your purchase is exactly what you want, not just the best of the choices available to you in limited numbers.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Frank Cunningham, Des Moines, Iowa is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following sewing suggestion.

"Here's a great money saving idea for any of us who wear the expensive support pantyhose. Buy several pair in the same color. When one hose runs, snags or tears, cut the leg off at the crotch seam and attach to another pair that has only one good leg. The two good legs together make a new pair of hose.

"When attaching, use the zigzag stitch on your machine and pull the seam as far as possible when stitching to maintain the correct elasticity. When cutting the legs off, be sure to leave the seam that was stitched originally. This prevents running in the hose."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have a beautiful white coat and dress, trimmed in red and navy blue. It was 100 per cent washable, so I soaked it in a suitable product for home laundering. I guess I soaked it too long, because everywhere the red touched the coat it faded onto the white. I can't afford to scrap this outfit, is there any help for me?

MRS. S.J.

DEAR MRS. S.J.:

You've already learned your lesson, the hard way. Red, of all colors, will fade quickly and permanently. In fact, it is almost impossible to remove. The only suggestion I have for you is to rip the present trim off the coat and dress. There are worlds of great trimmings available in your better fabric shops. Find a new one or several rows of narrower trim and cover the faded spots.

Be sure the trim is also washable. If it isn't 100 per cent polyester, I would recommend pre-shrinking it to avoid a puckered look once it has been laundered. This is your chance to be a little creative. You might even like your outfit better with your very own trim because it won't be duplicated by anyone.

DEAR READERS,

I have had many letters asking how to remove the center fold marks from the fabric. These invariably end up at the center front of the garment. I have suggested repeatedly that you avoid the original fold and re-fold the fabric before cutting any piece of your pattern that should be cut on the foldline.

If it isn't possible to avoid the fold marks altogether, be sure to press them out completely before you continue with the construction of the garment. If you underline over these creases, and then try to remove them, you are faced with an impossible task because you must never press on the right side of your fabric.

If a steam iron won't remove the creases, experiment with some of your scraps before you try other methods. Often sparline or seltzer water will work (be sure you don't confuse this with sweet soda which would stain). Another tip is to use white vinegar mixed with a little water. Rub this lightly on the crease line and press.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have never done any tailoring before. In fact, my sewing has been mostly with polyester knits until this time. Now I am faced with the problem of trying to make these hard finished fabrics look smooth on the faced edges. Please tell us more about pressing.

MRS. V.M.

DEAR MRS. V.M.:

For all of you who have fallen into the "instant sewing" such as the kind of construction used for unlined knits, there is a whole new world of construction techniques ahead of you.

As soon as you have machine stitched the outer faced edges of your garment, necklines, collars, pockets, etc. the seams must be pressed open on the narrow, wooden edge of your tailor trix pressing board. There is also another product on the market called an edge board which is a separate piece of equipment that can be purchased. You will find this gadget invaluable and wonder how you ever got along without it.

You must also learn how to pound out the steam after you've pressed any faced edges of woolens to prevent the steam from remaining in the fabric. "The steam must be forced out by a sharp slap with the wooden board. If left in the garment it would cause it to pucker up and would no longer look pressed.

If you would like more information on my tailor trix pressing board, please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of the Independent-Journal and it will be sent to you. Whenever you send for any special information be sure to let me know of any sewing problems you have or any special little tips you would like to offer.

THE ENVIRONMENT

Corte Madera Creek and the concrete channel used to control flooding on a portion of it will be among topics discussed at the third session — focusing on the environment — of the San Anselmo Town Meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Red Hill School library.

The concrete channel has been constructed partially through Ross, but continuing work to near the San Anselmo town line has been delayed by legal hassles. The San Anselmo City Council has said it will not allow the "concrete ditch" into its city.

Mill Valley Trustees To Discuss Employee Balance

Proposed changes which would strengthen the Mill Valley School District's policy on the achievement of racial and ethnic balance of employees will be discussed at Monday's meeting of the school board to be held at 8 p.m. at Park School.

The board also will discuss a letter from the professional relations committee of the Mill Valley Teacher's Association about an investigation into the intimidation and harassment of teachers, brought up as part of a petition presented to the board last September by a group of Mill Valley residents.

The committee, in its letter to the board, declined to investigate the issue.

Principal assignments for the coming year will be discussed at the meeting, as well as a proposed committee to screen candidates for a new principal at Old Mill School.

Republican Council Sets Picnic Date

Marin Republican Council directors have set the organization's annual picnic for May 20 on Angel Island.

In other business, directors made Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, an honorary director of the council.

Acupuncture In Union Contract

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Teamsters Union has included insurance coverage for acupuncture in its attempt to organize Chinatown workers.

"Our insurance carrier has agreed to cover the costs—whatever they are," Teamsters organizer Rudy Tham said Thursday.

Jury Trial Set In Auto Theft

A jury trial has been set for the week of April 24 in Marin Superior Court for Gary Clyde Kruger, 20, of no known address, charged with stealing a car in San Anselmo and driving it to Orange County.

Kruger was stopped by Anaheim Police Feb. 9 when they noticed two bald tires and a cracked windshield on the car he was driving. He was turned over to Marin authorities when a check revealed the car had been stolen from a San Anselmo resident.

Master Plan For Pacheco Development Due Study

A master plan for construction of 694 apartment and townhouse units on the historic Pacheco Ranch property near Ignacio will be considered Monday by the Marin County Planning Commission.

The plan, submitted by Perl-Mack Companies, also proposes a small shopping center and a motel-restaurant-service station development.

In return, the developer says 382 acres of forested hills and creek banks will be retained as public open space, leaving the remaining 137 acres for development.

The property is located opposite Highway 101 from Pacheco Hill between Marinwood and Loma Verde. It is surrounded by steep, tree-covered slopes, and is the final portion of the original 6,659-acre land grant given pioneer Marin rancher Ygnacio Pacheco in 1840.

Pacheco's ranch originally was bounded by Novato to the North, by San Pablo bay to the east, and to the south and west by Las Gallinas and Rancho Nicasio and included what is now Hamilton Air Force Base.

The proposed master plan would keep the bulk of development on the flat valley floor but allows about 120 townhouses to be built on the hillsides.

In reviewing the plan, the county planning department has recommended the proposal be deferred to June since it is in conflict with the Novato area general plan, now under revision.

School sites are not indicated by the plan, and more open space is needed along the creek which meanders through the valley, the department claimed.

The commission, scheduled to meet at 9 a.m. at Civic Center, will tour the Pacheco site during its lunch break.

The commission also is scheduled to hear a rezoning request from Herbert Angress for his property on Shoreline Highway near Marshall. Angress would like the land rezoned from commercial and residential to agricultural.

Builder At Home Following Operation

Neils J. Schultz Sr. of the Schultz Building Co. has returned home after an operation to remove cataracts from his eyes, according to a spokesman for the company he founded in Greenbrae.

The octagenarian builder is expected to be off work about a month to recuperate from the operation, which was performed at Marin General Hospital.

Group Asks Zoo To Keep Oxen

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The two musk oxen President Nixon promised China still are at the San Francisco Zoo today, and a group of conservationists want them to stay there.

Milton and Matilda were to be delivered to China last month in return for a pair of giant pandas from the Peking Zoo. However, Milton came down with a sore throat and has been under treatment.

A conservation group turned up at a city Parks and Recreation Committee meeting Thursday and said the oxen should be kept here unless the San Francisco Zoo gets the pandas in return.

Pro-Rate Plates On The Big Rigs

Have you ever wondered about all the license plates on the back of the big truck-trailer rigs on the highway?

There is one license plate which has nothing but a large number of registration stickers attached.

This is the "pro-rate" plate. Instead of requiring a truck to pay the total fees in each state of operation, truck operators may pay an amount to each state equal to the amount of operation in that state.

If a truck were to operate half the time in Nevada and the other half in California, it would display a sticker from each state and pay only half the fees to California and the other half to Nevada.

Some trailers display as many as 10 or 12 states of operation.

Arson Charge Hearing Set On March 20

A preliminary hearing has been sel for March 20 in Marin Municipal Court for Peter Charles Locati Jr., 20, of Sleepy Hollow, who is charged with agson in connection with a fire at a house under construction near his home.

Locati is accused of starting a blaze which did about $10,000 worth of damage Feb. 12 to a house at the end of Petrina Lane.

The fire was only one of a series which has plagued builders of new homes in the old Sleepy Hollow Stables area, formerly a recreational area for youngsters from Sleepy Hollow.

The other fires are still under investigation.

Rain Causes One Accident On Freeway

Rain, according to the California Highway Patrol, apparently caused a Mill Valley woman to lose control of her car on Highway 101 near Highway 37 Thursday night, and hit an embankment and roll over.

Sandra J. Tierney, 31, of 30 Quarry Road was treated at Marin General Hospital. Officers said she was southbound on the freeway when she hit a patch of water on the road.

A Reagan Victory In Welfare Area

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The California Rural Legal Assistance plans to swiftly appeal to the State Supreme Court a lower court decision upholding a section of the new welfare reform law requiring adult children to help support their needy parents.

"There are hundreds of thousands of people around the state waiting on this decision," said CRLA attorney Peter Koppelman. "We're going to get a definitive opinion from the California Supreme Court."

The 3rd District Court of Appeal in a split 2-1 decision Friday blistered the "relative responsibility" provision of the new welfare reform act as "cruel" and "harsh" but refused to declare it unconstitutional.

The ruling was a victory for the Reagan administration which has suffered setback after setback in court in attempts to implement the new law and a defeat for CRLA, a frequently successful court adversary of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Koppelman said CRLA plans to press an appeal "at the earliest possible date."

The court said in spite of the law's "economic hardship" on low income adult children, "judges must rigorously abstain from substituting their own moral, social and economic predilections for the legislature's."

The state Department of Social Welfare estimated the ruling would save taxpayers $17 million a year. Under the reform law, about 218,000 adult children are required to contribute to the support of their welfare parents receiving Old Age Assistance (OAS).

The ruling overturned a temporary order by Superior Court Judge William Gallagher of Sacramento which prohibited the state from enforcing the "relative responsibility" section of the new law. The appellate court previously had stayed the order and county welfare departments continued to collect contributions from adult children of OAS recipients.

The decision, written by Justice Leonard Friedman, said the court "fully agrees with the claims of irreparable harm, harshness and economic hardship" made by the plaintiffs, two San Joaquin County men who were required to help pay for the support of their OAS mothers.

The court said the new law, which sharply increases the rate of support for such parents and reduced the income point at which an adult child would be required to contribute, caused "irreparable harm" and "economic hardship" to the children, especially those at lower economic levels.

"Affluent adult children have affluent parents or can afford to support their dependent parents," the court observed, stressing that the new law "strikes most aggressively and harshly at adult children occupying the lower end of the income scale."

Although the court declared it was "convinced of the law's cruel impact" on the poor, it must be upheld because of the "demarcation between legislative power and judicial authority."

The majority decision also took an indirect swipe at the state Supreme Court's failure to establish clear guidelines for deciding welfare cases.

"The court finds its members in disagreement stemming from conflicting interpretations of utterances of the California Supreme Court," said the decision by Friedman and Justice Bertram Janes.

In a dissent, Justice Warren K. Taylor insisted the law unconstitutionally discriminated against the poor and placed a special heavy burden on them because they have parents receiving OAS while affluent families generally do not.

The case was filed on behalf of the two men and their mothers by CRLA and the Sacramento law firm of Blackmon, Moulds, Isenberg and Blicker.

One, Howard Huntley, said he and his 67-year-old wife have a net monthly income of $656 and are "attempting to save for their retirement" but he is required to contribute $70 a month to his mother's support while his brother contributes $80.

The other plaintiff, Julius Dykstra, is a married truck driver who earns $680 a month and must pay $75 a month for his mother's support. He said he is unable to do so after paying bills, including $180 a month for child support and $145 for rent.

He contended, additionally, that he had paid $10 a month for his mother's upkeep but that the county welfare department deducted an equal sum from his mother's welfare grant.

NAACP Touches Off Fuss On Convention Preamble

GARY, Ind. (UPI)—A spokesman for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has touched off the first controversy of the National Black Political Convention, charging that the preamble of a proposed platform was rooted in black separatism and unacceptable to the NAACP.

The preamble was submitted by the platform committee on the opening day of the threeday convention Friday. The convention was to embark upon its first full day of business today.

John A. Morsell sent a letter to NAACP representatives among the 5,000 delegates who gathered in Gary charging that the "rhetoric" of the preamble "is that of revolution rather than reform."

"If the 'agenda' adopted by the convention turns out to be consistent with the draft preamble the agenda also will be impossible for the NAACP to endorse," Morsell said.

The proposed preamble, submitted late Friday, said "new faces in old places in Washington, D.C." would not solve the problems.

"The American system does not work for the masses of our people and it cannot be made to work without radical, fundamental change...

"Both parties have betrayed us whenever their interests conflicted with ours (which was most of the time), and whenever our forces were unorganized and dependent, quiescent and compliant ... If white liberalism could have solved our problems, then Lincoln and Roosevelt and Kennedy would have done so."

The controversy marred the opening day of the convention, which was heralded by some of its organizers and political observers as the most significant gathering of blacks in America since the Reconstruction Era.

"The draft preamble is rooted in the concept of separate nationhood for black Americans," the letter said. "It calls for withdrawal from the American political process on the thesis that this is 'white' politics.

"It proclaims a doctrine of black racial superiority in that it holds that only persons of African descent are capable of spearheading movement toward desirable change in the society. Its rhetoric is that of revolution rather than reform..."

There was no immediate reaction from convention organizers to Morsell's attack. But key leaders of the convention— representing an ideological spectrum from the Black Panther party to the NAACP— served notice that delegates would demand a new deal from the Democratic and Republican parties and American society.

Statement On Invitation Hit

Patricia Maginnis, candidate for the Fourth Supervisorial District seat in Marin, yesterday disputed a statement that all contenders for the post were invited to speak to the Marin Property Owners Association.

The statement was contained in a denial by Richard Nave, association president, that the group had endorsed Michael Peevey for the seat.

Miss Maginnis said she was not invited to speak to the group.

Hearing Tuesday In Auto Theft

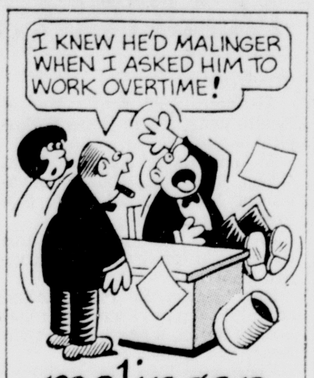

A preliminary hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court for Andrew Lee Johnson, 20, of Marin City, who is charged with car theft.

Johnson is accused of taking a car from the Marin Heliport on Feb. 19. He was stopped by a deputy sheriff in Marin City when the deputy noticed a broken wing window on the car. The vehicle had been hot-wired.

Two Vote No

The Independent-Journal reported Thursday that the Novato Fire Protection District board had voted to increase their pay from $10 to $20 per meeting, but neglected to mention that directors Joseph F. Silveira and Dante Panfiglio voted against the hike.

WORD-A-DAY

Harrisburg 7 Hammers At Douglas

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)— The Harrisburg Seven defense has tried to show that the star government witness was so devoted to his job of informing the FBI about the antiwar activists that he wanted to be indicted along with them to prolong his service.

Boyd F. Douglas Jr., the two-time convict who became an informant, went through his fourth day of cross-examination Friday. The questions thrown at him were gleaned from reports of FBI agents—turned over to the defense by the government—about his activities, beliefs and requests.

Referring to a meeting Douglas had with FBI men and prosecutors before testifying to the grand jury that indicted the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and six codefendants in January, 1971, defense attorney J. Thomas Menaker asked:

"Didn't you make a request that you be indicted along with the others?"

"That was up to them," Douglas replied, apparently referring to the government attorneys rather than the grand jury.

SEVERAL TIMES

Menaker repeated the question several times, but Douglas would not say he had made a specific request. Finally Menaker asked:

"Didn't you so request—and tell them that if they'd arrange to indict you too, you could keep this thing going a long time?"

"I don't recall that," Douglas replied.

Douglas' paid informer work led to the charge on which the seven are being tried in federal court here: plotting to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, blow up Washington heating tunnels and vandalize draft boards to publicize their movement against the Vietnam war.

Douglas' testimony seemed to be contradicted by the calendar at one time, when he was making the pointNothat Berrigan didn't always advocate nonviolence.

Once, Douglas said, "when someone was blown up at the University of Wisconsin," the priest remarked: "What's one life in Wisconsin when they are killing many and many in Vietnam every day?"

LAST TALK

That observation, Douglas said, could have been during—but was probably before—his last talk with Berrigan before the latter was transferred from Lewisburg prison to the Danbury, Conn., prison.

That talk was on Sunday night, Aug. 23, 1970, he said.

But the sabotage explosion that killed a graduate student at the Army Mathematics Research Center at the University of Wisconsin occurred at 3:45 a.m., Monday, Aug. 24. Menaker did not mention this fact, but merely asked if Douglas had seen Berrigan after the Sunday night talk.

"Not that I recall," Douglas replied.

However, Berrigan was not transferred until Tuesday, Aug. 25.

Car Theft Case To Superior Court

Tam Cagers Dropped From Tourney By Dublin, 54-50

By LEW CODDINGTON

OAKLAND — The roof didn't cave in when Jared McFerrin was injured, but it began to creak a little, and by the fourth quarter there was a pile of rubble just large enough to bury Tamalpais High School's basketball hopes.

The Indians from Mill Valley were eliminated from the Tournament of Champions yesterday when they lost a seven-point lead and succumbed to Dublin High School, 54-50, in the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

It marked the second straight year the the Marin County Athletic League champion was ousted in two consecutive games. The tournament will conclude tonight with San Joaquin Memorial of Fresno meeting Hayward for the championship at 8 p.m., Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland facing Berkeley for third place at 6:30, and Dublin confronting Fremont for the consolation title (fifth place) at 5. Yesterday, Fremont beat Balboa of San Francisco, 69-40, Fremont topped Berkeley, 66-61, and Memorial dumped O'Dowd, 77-67.

McFerrin, a 6-foot-4 all-league junior forward, rammed home nine points in the first quarter, but sprained his right ankle early in the second period and was out for good.

The loss didn't tell drastically until the fourth quarter, when Dublin used a full-court press to great advantage in overcoming a 42-35 deficit. McFerrin's ball-handling was missed.

"I think we would have won with Jared," said Tamalpais coach Bernie Schneider. "But I was proud of the way the other players responded, particularly Will Garner and Mike Dinehart. I think we saw the real Will out there today."

Garner was high man with 27 points and 15 rebounds. He hit 12 of 26 shots from the field, scoring on outside jumpers as well as inside shots. Dinehart grabbed 13 more rebounds despite sometimes being left alone under the bucket as Garner drifted outside to shoot and McFerrin watched wanly from the bench.

It was a redemptive effort for Garner, the MCAL's leading scorer, who was held to eight points when Tam lost to Hayward High in the first-round game, 48-46.

Tam played its usual brand of high-pressure defense. Dublin got only one field goal in the first 5:44 of the game, and just one fielder in the first 6:26 of the second half. All told, the Gaels shot only 32 per cent on 17 of 53 shots.

In the process, however, Tamalpais committed 20 personal fouls to Dublin's nine, which resulted in Dublin making 20 of 30 free throws, compared to Tam's six of 13.

"Our kids seem to thrive on pressure," said Dublin coach Roger Dabney. "The press was the decisive factor in the game." Dublin forced Tam to turn the ball over 21 times, an indication of how much McFerrin was missed.

Tam jumped off to a 16-12 lead in the first quarter, surrendered seven straight points just before McFerrin's injury, but climbed back on top at half-time, 26-24.

With the scored tied at 26-26, Garner made a jumper, a tip-in and another jumper, David Jones scored on a steal and Castroma Dickens made a layup on a pass from Garner. Tam led abruptly, 36-29, and later made it 42-35.

Dublin center Norm Bumgarner responded with six straight points while Schneider rested Garner. Larry Robertson put Dublin ahead, 43-42, and after Garner hit a jumper, Lester Roberson gave Dublin the lead for good on a tip, 45-44. A three-point play by Tom Walker made it 48-44 with 3:35 remaining.

A bank shot by Garner, a jumper by Pat Locey and a steal by Johnson all brought Tam back within two, but Walker and Lester Roberson kept scoring for Dublin.

With 19 seconds left and Tam trailing, 52-50, Garner took an in-bounds pass along the baseline, but lost the ball before he could shoot. Three seconds later, Locey fouled Walker while stealing the ball from him, and the Gael made the two clinching free throws.

Larry Roberson led Dublin with 14 points, while Lester and Bungarner had 12 apiece. Lester had 13 rebounds and Bumgarner 11, but Tam controlled the boards, 44-37.

Blefary Powers A's Triumph, 5-3

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—Curt Blefary's half-swing is as potent as most full swings.

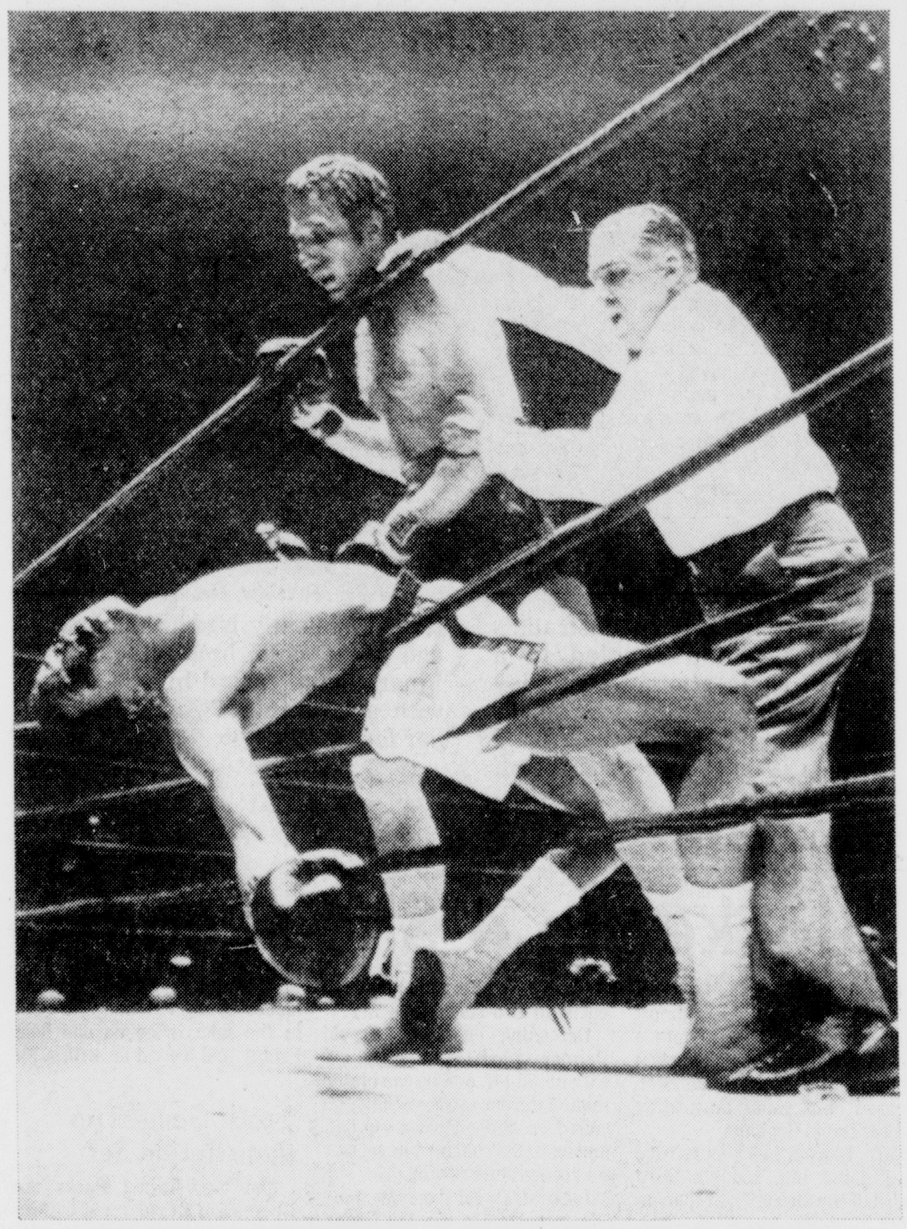

The reserve catcher-first baseman-outfielder collected three hits Friday in leading the Oakland Athletics to a 5-3 Cactus League win over the Hiroshima Carp.

His home run in the first inning came on what appeared to be a belated, half-hearted swing. But the ball jumped over the outfield fence. Blefary also singled in a run in the fifth as the A's put the game out of reach with a two-run uprising.

Catcher Dave Duncan, the only A's regular who saw action, slugged a solo homer in the second and doubled in the fourth before calling it a day.

Dennis Myers and Bob Locker both turned in sparkling mound performances for Oakland. Myers allowed one hit in two innings while Locker struck out two of the three batters he faced.

Sachid Kinugasa of the Carps hit a home run in the second inning off Jim Roland. The ball sailed about 400 feet and cleared the centerfield fence.

BOXER BATTERED INTO HELPLESS HULK

Carty Hospitalized With Damaged Leg

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Injury-plagued Rico Carty of the Atlanta Braves was hospitalized today at West Palm Beach, Fla., with an inflammation in his left leg. A knee injury kept the slugging outfielder sidelined for the entire 1971 campaign. Carty was also sidelined in 1968 with tuberculosis, and in 1969 with a serious shoulder separation.

Carty had been scheduled to see some action today in the Braves' Grapefruit League opener against the Los Angeles Dodgers. A club spokesman said further word on the seriousness of Carty's latest injury will be made following a thorough examination today.

Jeff Burroughs' two-run homer powered the Texas Rangers past the New York Yankees, 4-0; Tom McCarver's ninth inning homer helped Philadelphia edge Boston, 5-4; Rick Reichardt drove in four runs with a homer and a double in leading the Chicago White Sox past Detroit, 7-5; and Bob Robertson's single in the first inning scored Dave Cash as Pittsburgh blanked Minnesota, 1-0.

Randy Elliott slugged a grand slam homer to give San Diego a 4-3 victory over California; homers by Curt Blefary and Dave Duncan powered Oakland past the Hiroshima Carps, 5-3; Cleveland scored a run in the 10th inning to beat Milwaukee, 6-5; and Andy Etchebarren drove in two runs and scored another as Baltimore downed Los Angeles, 4-1.

Warriors Defeat Houston

Russell Adds 30 In Victory

HOUSTON (UPI) — Cazzie Russell's injury seems to be hurting the opposition more than it does him.

Dragging his left leg because of a pinched nerve in his back, the courageous forward scored 30 points to lead the Golden State Warriors to a 119-116 win over the Houston Rockets Friday night.

It was the sixth straight win for the Warriors and opened a two-game bulge over Seattle in their fight for the remaining playoff berth in the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division.

Russell scored 11 points in the first quarter, sat out the second period and then made 19 in the last half to power Golden State to its 47th win against 26 losses. The Warriors can equal the team's alltime high of 48 wins in a season by beating the Royals in Cincinnati Sunday afternoon.

Center Nate Thurmond, forward Clyde Lee and guard Jeff Mullins also contributed heavily to the Warriors victory.

Lee grabbed 18 rebounds to run his season's total to 1,007 while Thurmond plucked 12 to run his total to 1,101. That was only the eighth time in NBA history that one team has had two men with more than 1,000 caroms in the same season.

Novato Tops Petaluma In Baseball

It may be what everybody calls "pre-season," but somebody should tell the Novato High School baseball team, which is already close to mid-season form.

The rampaging Hornets won their fourth game without a loss yesterday, defeating host Petaluma, 8-4, behind the hitting of catcher Dennis Stanley and the pitching of Mike Lamb.

In other action involving Marin County Athletic League teams, visiting Marin Catholic defeated Healdsburg, 6-1; Drake lost to Hogan in Vallejo, 4-3 in eight innings; Terra Linda fell at Napa, 5-0; and San Marin lost to invading Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa, 2-1.

Marin Catholic's game in Analy of Sebastopol and San Rafael's home game with Riordan of San Francisco at Albert Park were cancelled due to wet grounds, and both were rescheduled for Monday at 3:30 p.m., same site.

Novato's Stanley pounded out three hits in four trips, knocked in two runs, and raised his batting average for the embryonic season to an eye-opening .635. Bill Busher and Jim Askim also drove in two runs each for the Hornets.

Marin Catholic pitcher Jim Petray handcuffed Healdsburg on five hits, striking out six and walking none.

San Marin lost for the first time this season despite cutting four Cardinal Newman runners down at the plate. The Mustangs hustled up a run in the fifth as Marty Larsen singled, stole second and third and came home on a wild throw by the catcher.

Terra Linda pitchers surrendered three home runs. On the other side of the coin, the Trojan batters could scrape up only one hit, an infield single by Don McCarthy in the second inning.

Ken Zepponi belted a two-run, first-inning double to give Drake an early lead, but the Vallejo team won in the eighth on a two-out single.

Chicago Belts Sam McDowell

TUCSON (UPI)—There was a chance righthander Gaylord Perry of the Cleveland Indians would pitch today against his old teammates.

Perry, undoubtedly, will be able to perform better against the San Francisco Giants than did former Cleveland pitcher Sam McDowell against the Chicago Cubs Friday. The Giants swapped Perry for McDowell during the winter.

McDowell complained he was sick, sick, sick (like in ill) Friday while the Cubs went whack, whack, whack. When the desert dust settled at Phoenix, the Cubs had belted McDowell for eight runs in the first inning en route to a 10-2 victory.

"I shouldn't have gone out there," said McDowell, the former American League strikeout king. "I couldn't see the plate. I almost passed out."

McDowell said he was weakened by a recent attack of dysentery and the 97-degree desert heat didn't help.

It took him 57 pitches and 25 minutes to get out the side in the first inning. Jose Cardenal touched him for a grand slam home run. McDowell retired the Cubs on nine pitches in the second inning before calling it a day.

MISSES MARK BY 2 PINS

Mrs. Epidendio Rolls 286

Marilyn Epidendio came within one frame of Marin County bowling immortality.

The San Rafael mother of three fell two pins short of matching Mrs. Vivian Gray's 10-year-old women's county bowling mark of 288.

Mrs. Epidendio fired 10 successive strikes before a 3-9-10 split on the 11th frame dashed her hopes of matching Mrs. Gray's Oct. 31, 1962 achievement. Mrs. Epidendio took home an outstanding 286.

Ironically, both Mesdames Epidendio and Gray achieved their records at Greenbrae Lanes.

Mrs. Epidendio will now join February Bowler of the Month Bea Hoffmann and Penny Tauscher, among others, in the Country Club Bowl's Second Annual Elimination Tournament Sunday, 2:30 p.m. This event will follow the Marin County Women's "600" Club annual election meeting at 12:30 p.m., Sunday, at Lyons restaurant in Greenbrae.

A familiar face has returned to be Marin County's bowling king of the hill this week.

Ed Henry of San Rafael recorded a handsome 700 series at Greenbrae Lanes, including games of 249, 227 and 224; but it was two Greenbrae gals who received much of the hoopla this week.

Seals, Toronto Set Battle For Playoff

TORONTO (UPI)—It's tough telling whether the California Golden Seals or Toronto Maple Leafs more desperately need a victory tonight.

Both are fighting for what looks like the final playoff berth in the East and West divisions of the National Hockey League.

Right now, Toronto is probably a bit more secure because the Maple Leafs are in fourth place, two points ahead of Detroit.

California, meanwhile, has fallen on hard times in recent weeks and is now in fifth place, three points behind St. Louis and Philadelphia and three in front of pursuing Pittsburgh.

Thus far this season, the Seals and Maple Leafs have split evenly in five games with two wins, two losses and a tie.

On Sunday, the Seals skate against the New York Rangers in Madison Square Garden. The best the Seals have done in five games with the Rangers is a 2-2 tie.

Mrs. Bailey In Golf Go

Novato's Mrs. Melinda Bailey, wife of the College of Marin track coach, Tony, meets Pam Palmieri of Santa Rosa tomorrow in the 36-hole finals of the San Francisco Women's City Championship at Harding Park.

Mrs. Bailey has lost four times in the tourney finals but is determined to reverse this tomorrow. She stated: "It's the first time I've been in the finals where I feel I deserve, or believe I really can win.

LEACH, BYU TO DEFEND GOLF TITLE

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — Novato's Ray Leach and his Brigham Young University golf team cohorts return here March 29-31 as champions in the Western Intercollegiate Golf Championships at Pastiempo golf course.

Leach, an All-American last year as a junior and a Novato High School graduate, is the number one man on the Provo, Utah-based squad.

A veteran San Diego State University team is expected to provide BYU with a stern test. The University of Hawaii and the Air Force Academy entered for the first time.

Stanford Discusses Black Cage Demands

STANFORD (UPI) — School officials at Stanford are holding informal discussions regarding a list of 12 demands presented by six members of the basketball team.

They include an end to alleged differential treatment of black athletes, scheduling of games with black colleges, having a task force evaluate coaching practices, equalizing scholarship offers to black and white athletes and more blacks officiating at Pacific-8 Conference games.

Head basketball coach Howie Dallmar said he was confident "satisfactory solutions" can be reached.

He added the list of demands was presented to him last month by parttime assistant coach Charles Range. Range and the black players involved discussed the demands with Dallmar and acting athletic director Robert Young.

"We are concerned with permanent and lasting solutions," not just those which may be expedient at the moment, especially since everything is pointed toward next year's basketball season," said Young.

Dallmar said one area of difficulty is that only five players can be in the game at a given time "and any player sitting on the bench feels he should be playing more."

"A coach in any sport certainly doesn't make decisions like this based on racial feelings and he trusts that his players won't make judgment that way either," said Dallmar.

Kingman's Play Key To Giants' Lineup

PHOENIX — It seems that spring training just started yesterday. Yet, the midway mark is coming up faster than you can say "Play Ball" which is precisely what the plate umpire will say in less than a month at Candlestick Park when the San Francisco Giants open the 1972 major league season April 6 against the San Diego Padres.

Numerically the 1972 roster of the Giants will break down the same way as it did last year — 10 pitchers, 3 catchers, 6 infielders and 6 outfielders. The equal division of infielders-outfielders is a mathematical convenience.

Actually, the infield-outfield ratio probably will be 7-5 with one of the infielders, in this case Dave Kingman, capable of double duty. But Charlie Fox hopes that Kingman will confine most of his activity this season at third base.

THAT WOULD make the manager of the Giants very happy. Kingman at third base has been the great experiment of the Fox this spring. It was the only spot in the lineup he could find for Kingman's big bat, a weapon that is too valuable to keep on the bench.

But the jury still is out on Kingman's third base glove notwithstanding encouraging marks it has been given by its No. 1 critic and instructor, Joe Amalfitano, an old third base hand. It's the duty of glove instructors like Amalfitano to pump spring confidence into young men, such as Kingman, playing a new position for the first time.

THE EXPERIMENT of Kingman at third isn't one that involves just two players — Kingman and Alan Gallagher, the team's regular third baseman the past two seasons. The experiment goes far beyond that.

Its success or failure will dictate Fox' overall strategy for the 1972 campaign. The strategy at the moment has Willie Mays batting leadoff, Kingman No. 3 where the captain of the Giants has been a fixture for two decades except for occasional leadoff roles.

Moving Mays up from the No. 3 slot to No. 1 potentially can pay rich dividends because Mays, even though he will be 41 in a couple of months, still knows how to worry a pitcher once he gets on base.

ADDITIONALLY, when Mays is resting this season, as every 41-year-old must, Fox won't have to juggle several men in the batting lineup. All he'll have to do is insert Jimmy Rosario's name in the leadoff spot. Rosario is the outfield swing man who played errorlessly in center last year when Mays was resting.

Thus, the far reaching importance of the great experiment of Kingman at third base becomes a kind of chain reaction. And the third base phase of the experiment is just part of the pressure the 23-year-old Kingman is undergoing.

He does have a big bat but he still must prove that he can hit in the No. 3 pressure position. Even Bobby Bonds, at 23, found it too tough three seasons ago — the last time a Giant manager put Mays in a leadoff batting role.

Laney In Cage Finals

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI)— Laney College of Oakland and Santa Monica City College fought their way into the finals Friday night of the California Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Laney won its semi-final game against top-ranked Fullerton Junior College, 88-76, becoming the only Northern California team to reach the finals since 1966.

Laney guard Brady Allen and forward Tyree Foster led the Eagle attack, evenly splitting 50 points and accounting for 27 rebounds. High scoring honors went to Hornet guard Brad McNamara with 26.

Santa Monica City College held Rio Hondo of Whittier to just 14 points in the second half for a 50-49 victory.

Contra Costa College of San Pablo and Santa Barbara City College will meet in the consolation title game. Contra Costa beat American River of Sacramento 87-79 and Santa Barbara eliminated Allan Hancock of Santa Maria 76-69 in semi-finals Friday night.

BODY ENGLISH — Australia's David Graham reacted to a missed eagle attempt yesterday in Orlando, Fla. by tossing his golf club and kicking the ground in the Citrus Open second round. He subsequently birdied the hole and went onto break the Rio Pinar course record by one shot with a blistering 63, nine under par for the day. (UPI Telephoto)

CITRUS OPEN

Blocker In 4-Shot Lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)— Texan Chris Blocker has almost turned the Citrus Open into a runaway but you'd never know it from the attention that has been focused on a young Australian named David Graham.

Sure, Blocker has a fourstroke lead going into today's third round of the $150,000 golf tournament after shooting 67-66 —133. But nobody ever shot a round here to match the one the 25-year-old Graham turned in Friday.

Graham, unknown in the United States but a fairly big name on the international circuit where he has been one of the big winners, had an eagle and seven birdies Friday enroute to a 9-under-par 63 that was a stroke lower than anyone had ever played the Rio Pinar course before.

Graham had a 75 in Thursday's opening round so that 63-75—138, tied for third place with Babe Hiskey who shot a 71 Friday and a stroke behind Jerry Heard, a young Californian who took over second with his 67-137.

Blocker, 32 who now plays out of Jacksonville, Fla., had eight birdies and two bogeys in Friday's round and credited his putter with "saving me when I got into trouble with some bad iron shots."

"We were a very relaxed threesome," said Blocker. "David and I just kept putting it up and in. It must have been a pretty sight to watch."

Napa's Ron Cerrudo made the cut with two successive 73's.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer failed to make the cut with his 75-147, and he can blame that on the one-stroke penalty he called on himself when his ball moved in the rough while he was taking a practice swing.

Jack Nicklaus, the man most people picked to win the Citrus after he won at Doral to become both this year's and the all-time leading money winner, shot 72-142 and was grumbling about his game. South Africa's Gary Player fared worse than Nicklaus but better than Palmer as he turned in a 75-144 for his worst of 10 tournament rounds in the three weeks he's been back in the United States.

Another golfer who was down in the dumps was first round leader Bobby Mitchell who went in the lake twice on one hole Friday and wound up with a 78.

In two non-league meets also yesterday, San Marin took visiting Eureka, 58-37, and the Terra Linda Class B squad defeated De La Salle of Concord 61-33 in Pleasant Hill.

Redwood's only double winner was Paul Cane in the individual medley and breaststroke, but the Giants' top time of the day came from John Redig, who raced to a 23.2 in the 50-yard freestyle.

Rick DeMont and Keith Strange scored a pair of wins each for the Terra Linda Trojans, with DeMont notching a sharp 57.7 in the 100 butterfly. Roger Rechsteiner grabbed two freestyle wins for the defeated Hornets, and acrobat extraordinaire John Summerfield stole the show for Novato in the diving.

Redwood Harriers Edge Petaluma By 6

Tom Malvino scored a double win in jumping events to highlight a virtual Redwood High School sweep of the field events yesterday, as the Giants squeaked past Petaluma High School in a non-league track meet yesterday, 71-65.

In other preseason dual meets, Tamalpais was bombed by Lowell, 101-34, in San Francisco; Drake suffered a 91-45 loss to Analy of Sebastopol in San Anselmo, and Novato faltered at the hands of Santa Rosa 83-49; and Terra Linda blasted Piner High 85-39.

Malvino took the high and triple jumps as Redwood opened its dual meet season with a narrow win. Petaluma, however, won eight of the ten running events, including both relays, to give what coach Doug Basham calls, "a real scare. We trailed 46-23 at one point in the meet."

David Downing was the lone bright spot for Tamalpais as he won the triple and long jumps to post the Indians only victories.

Drake won the mile relay and both weight events, but that was it for the Pirates in the loss to Analy. Coach Morrie Shepherd said, "Analy really has a great program; its a pleasure competing against them. They, out of 800 students, have 105 members on their track team!"

Take The Guesswork Out Of Hand-Refuse The First Spade

FIRST TRICK

West opens the king of spades, and you triumphantly play dummy's ace of spades to win the first trick.

You are now in the market for a good crystal ball.

You have to guess which ace to knock out. If you guess wrong, down you go!

Suppose you decide to lead diamonds at the second trick. West takes the ace of diamonds and leads his other spade. This enables East to set up the rest of his long suit.

CLUB ACTION

Sooner or later, you must go after the clubs. Then East takes the ace of clubs and the rest of the spades. Down two.

You make the contract if you go after the clubs first. This knocks out East's only sure entry to the spades. However, there is no way for you to know which ace to knock out first.

A BETTER WAY

There is a better way to play the hand. You can eliminate all guesswork by refusing the first spade trick.

For one thing, West may have a singleton king of spades. In that case, he will have to switch, and any switch will be to your advantage.

As the cards lie, West has another spade to lead. You win with dummy's ace and knock out either the ace of clubs or the ace of diamonds. It doesn't matter which.

EITHER WAY

If you knock out the ace of clubs first, East's entry goes. If you knock out the ace of diamonds first, West is out of spades and can do nothing to help his partner's cause. Either way you make the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one diamond, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - Q 7 6
♥ - K 9 7
♦ - J 10 7
♣ - K J 10 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one no-trump. This shows about six to 10 points in high cards. In this case you have the maximum value for your bid, but partner has no way of knowing it as yet. If you made your bid of one no-trump over an opponent's bid, your partner would know that you had maximum value.

Townhouse Units Will Be Discussed

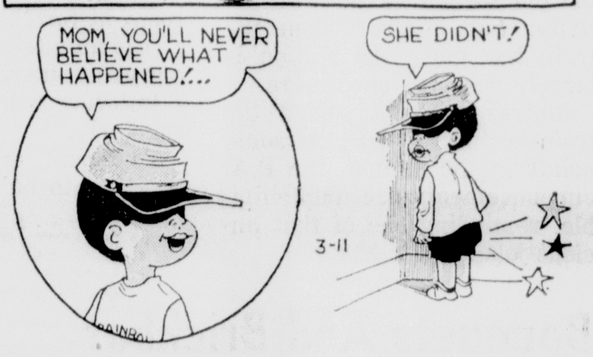

The Novato Planning Commission will consider a plan by Olompali Investment Co. for 54 townhouse units on 13-acres east of Sutro Avenue, across from Pleasant Valley School, at 8 p.m. Monday in the Novato Community House.

Commissioners also will review a plan by the Trousdale Division of Lear Siegler Inc. for 60 single-family attached homes on 39 acres at the end of Montura Way.

Future Looks Dim For Passenger Train

AMTRAK IS now in its tenth month as operator of the nation's railway passenger service.

It has spent a barrel of money, and then some. It has brought some improvement in those passenger routes which remain. The number of passengers on the remaining routes has increased.

But Amtrak's outlook for the future must remain dim.

A VISIT TO the Bay Area's only long-haul railway passenger terminal —the 16th Street station in Oakland — discloses many changes.

Ten months ago, station windows were grimy; today they show signs of recent cleaning. The refreshment stand is spruced up. Janitors are quietly at work cleaning the building. The old clock on the wall — long stopped — is running again. Ticket clerks are livelier; there are even lines at the ticket windows sometimes. A few younger red caps have joined the old timers who survive. A shoeshine stand is operating once more and appears reasonably busy. Baggage handlers seem more careful than their predecessors (and infinitely more careful than their airline counterparts).

There are people in the station in substantial numbers. Before Amtrak, the crowd would have consisted of a handful of blacks and hippies. Today it is middle class "WASP," although mostly grandparents and grandchildren with only a few younger adults. There are few young mods and almost no hippy types.

A few ancient handcarts are still in evidence, but baggage is handled mostly on quiet rubber-tired trailers drawn by reasonably quiet little tractors.

THERE ARE ONLY a few trains in and out each day. At times of arrival and departure the old station buzzes with activity, but briefly. When the train has gone, the station is largely deserted once more.

Amtrak has not solved the train-calling problem. At some points in the station, the P.A. announcements are unintelligible, reminding one of that ancient joke:

"They are experimenting in Europe, announcing trains in English. If the experiment is a success, they will try it in America."

The diner is clean, cheerful, and attracts customers in substantial numbers, but some sleeping cars are dingy, rugs and upholstery are stained and threadbare, and the exterior of some cars indicates they have traveled many days since their last washdown.

Conductor and brakemen still use hand signals to the engineer instead of a walkie-talkie.

Amtrak has a long way to go yet before it can claim to have modernized its operations.

IF YOU STROLL past the huge locomotives waiting to haul the long Coast Daylight south to Los Angeles, your attention will be attracted to the monster fuel tanks.

It must take at least as many gallons of fuel to haul the train to Los Angeles as it takes to jet an airliner the same distance. The Coast Daylight takes all day and carries fewer passengers. Five hundred miles of right-of-way and rails must be maintained.

You can only conclude that rail travel for passengers has to be very inefficient and uneconomic when compared to jet plane travel.

The government is pouring hundreds of millions of dollars into Amtrak which can never be self-supporting. It will always be a heavy drain on the taxpayers to benefit only a comparatively few riders.

Considering the many more critical needs our nation faces, it doesn't really make sense to dump hundreds of millions into such a bottomless well as Amtrak.

RAIL TOURS are enjoying a return to popularity.

A San Francisco Press Club outing is typical. For $93 per couple, members can get rail fare and Pullman accommodations to and from Reno (actually Sparks, Nev.) with dinner aboard and an overnight motel room at Sparks.

It is an interesting and pleasant way totravel, for a change.

But few will want to do it regularly.

To repeat, the future of Amtrak has to be dim.

BRICKBAT to Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, for trying to kill state Sen. Peter H. Behr's published roll call requirement bill by adding amendments to make it unworkable and unpassable.

BOUQUET to Explorer Post 15 for bringing Marin a sports and boat show at the Civic Center, scheduled April 27-30. The boys ran into quite a few roadblocks on this project, but persisted to bring it to fruition.

Stagger Work Hours To Ease Congestion

As a student of population problems at U.C. Davis, I am keenly aware of the need for resolving problems resulting from population pressures.

One way in which these pressures may be relieved is to better utilize the facilities of our society to more effectively and economically serve the needs of an ever-increasing population.

Another might be the better utilization of highways and transit facilities by staggering the work hours in metropolitan areas by expanding the range of starting and quitting times.

I should like to urge your newspaper to present arguments on both sides of these two issues, and to present factual data as to their feasibility and possible benefits. Further, I would like to see your newspaper take the lead in urging an investigation of these questions by those involved in government.

Tough Decision For Politician: Which Leg Goes In First?

WASHINGTON — One of the biggest cliches of American politics is that politicians are no different from anybody else. "They put on their pants one leg at a time." Everyone has accepted this without question, and while I hate to destroy another myth I can now reveal after some very difficult research that politicians are different from other people, at least when it comes to putting on their pants.

The first clue I had to this was when I read a book about Lyndon Johnson and how he dressed when he was President. Mr. Johnson had two Secret Service men hold his pants as he sat on his bed, and he put both legs into them at the same time. This certainly made him different from the rest of us and I decided to pursue the subject of other political leaders.

PRESIDENT NIXON, for example, has his valet lay his pants on the bed, and then the valet leaves the room so the President can make his decision in private. He keeps a yellow legal pad by his bedside where he writes out all the alternatives. Will it be better to put his right leg into his pants first, or will it be better to put his left leg? What will be the political repercussions if Jack Anderson finds our how he puts his pants on? Will the electorate think less of him if he puts his pants on like everybody else? What would happen if he didn't put on his pants at all?

Occasionally he might ask Henry Kissinger's opinion or call up John Mitchell wondering how he should do it, but the final decision has to be Mr. Nixon's. It is probably the loneliest decision that any President of the United States has to make.

When it comes to putting on his pants, no one agonizes more about it than Sen. Edmund Muskie. Since he doesn't want to offend either the left or the right he usually sticks his foot into the center of his pants. This, of course, causes complications as it takes him over an hour to put them on and makes him later for his appointments all day long. Sometimes Senator Muskie gets so angry when he tries to put on his pants that he is short-tempered all day long. His staff has been working on this and hopes to have a solution to the problem before the July convention.

SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN has a different problem. He has only one pair of pants and he has to be very careful when he puts them on so that he doesn't tear them. Before becoming a presidential candidate he always put on his shoes first. But when Frank Mankiewicz took over as campaign manager he persuaded McGovern to put on his pants first and then his shoes. This changed McGovern's image overnight and he has lost his serious demeanor, and seems much more relaxed as a candidate.

Gov. George Wallace, on the other hand, goes through three pairs of pants before he gets one on. What he does is jump out of bed in the morning and he is so excited to get going that he rips the pants as he is trying to get into them. His people have tried to persuade him to take it easier when he's getting dressed, but Wallace says, "Nobody, not the Supreme Court, nor those Eastern Establishment press lords nor those Washington bureaucrats are going to tell me how to put on my pants."

Sen. Hubert Humphrey had been identified with President Johnson's hard-line pants policy until late in the 1968 campaign, and many people feel this cost him the election. This year Humphrey no longer has to worry about Johnson and he has let it be known that when it comes to putting on his pants he's his own man. He has told audiences, "At least now when I put on my pants I no longer have my foot in my mouth."

Sen. Teddy Kennedy refused to say how he puts on his pants in the morning as he was afraid that people would think he was a candidate for the presidency. But people close to him told me that if there was a deadlock in Miami at the Democratic convention, Kennedy would be willing to put on his pants and accept a draft.

Many Secrets May Be Bared In Investigation Of ITT

WASHINGTON — There is one way the Nixon administration can disentangle from the sticky flypaper of the Kleindienst-I.T.T. investigation. That is for President Nixon to withdraw the name of Richard Kleindienst as the nominee for attorney general.

Short of that unlikely course, it promises to go on into the indefinite future. The surface has hardly been scratched. The strange case of Mrs. Dita Beard, the I.T.T. lobbyist whose memorandum revealed by Jack Anderson touched it all off. To one side, many witnesses must be called if the relationship between the giant corporation and the Nixon administration is to be clarified.

IT IS THE KIND of Roman holiday that Washington loves. In the hearing room in the new Senate Office Building, with its bogus larger-than-life neoclassicism, the flashbulbs flare as long files wait outside for admission. Smiling and jovial, Kleindienst greets friends in the audience seemingly unperturbed. Presiding above the turmoil is the impassive Buddha from Sunflower County, Miss., Sen. James O. Eastland, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. The chairman is no stranger to the entanglements of big government and big business, with the line where one ends and the other begins often impossible to define.

Back of the circus atmosphere this is the profoundly important issue that must be sorted out if the judiciary committee does its duty. Involved is the power of cronyism — the way in which top-level lawyers move into government and then back into the great law firms, the intimate ties always intact.

The big government-big business complex is a twin brother of the military-industrial complex. The reason settlement of the I.T.T.-Hartford Fire Insurance deal was turned over to Kleindienst, the deputy attorney general, was that the law firm of the then attorney general, John N. Mitchell, had represented a subsidiary of I.T.T. A senior partner in the firm was Richard M. Nixon.

A KEY WITNESS to be called is Harold S. Geneen, president of I.T.T., who put together the conglomerate, the eighth largest corporation in America with operations in at least 20 countries. Only Geneen testifying under oath can tell the full story that led up to the Justice Department's decision to order I.T.T. to spin off seven acquired companies while retaining Hartford with its cash flow of a billion dollars a year. He might be asked, incidentally, why the company's lobbyist in Washington was Mrs. Beard, who referred to him in the memo as Hal, when her physician and former Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn are trying to destroy her.

A phase of the I.T.T. case that has not figured as yet in the hearings must be explored. Last June 18 Geneen spent four hours with antitrust officials. Ten days later seven company insiders, including an executive vice-president, dumped nearly $1.5 million of I.T.T. stock on the market. In this way they avoided heavy losses when the stock dropped more than a half-dozen points on word that the antitrust settlement would be a tough one, with possible divestiture of the Hartford Insurance Co.

Were the insiders tipped off to what the outcome of the settlement then seemed certain to be? That is the kind of question which only Geneen and the insiders can answer on the witness stand under oath.

BOTH KLEINDIENST and Richard W. McLaren, head of the antitrust division in the Department of Justice at the time of the I.T.T. settlement and since made a federal judge, were shown to have made false statements when they testified that the White House had not been involved. It developed that Peter M. Flanigan, now the president's adviser on economic affairs, was brought in and he, in turn, retained Richard J. Ramsden, a former associate in the investment firm, Dillon, Read and Co., as an "independent expert" to pass on the case. The witnesses confronted with the new facts pleaded "hazy recollection."

Discrediting the unfortunate Mrs. Beard is the obvious strategy of the tacticians who want to kill the investigation and save Kleindienst's bacon. Mrs. Beard is only a pitiful pawn who blew off the lid with the allegation of I.T.T.'s deal to underwrite the Republican convention in San Diego.

What's Wrong With Economy? Government Hears New Theories

By RICHARD L. STROUT

Not that the economy doesn't show signs of recovery; but the question is, why so slow?

It has baffled the Nixon administration — and most economists — almost from the start. The key phrase was given by Arthur Burns, astute head of the Federal Reserve System, when he meditatively told a Senate committee recently that new things are happening — the economy isn't behaving the way it's supposed to.

According to Keynesian economics it was all simple: in an inflationary boom, cut expenditures and raise taxes; in a slump, raise expenditures and cut taxes — that stimulates the thing.

MR. NIXON TRIED to dampen the boom by traditional means for two and one-half years and produced a recession all right — but inflation kept right on. Nothing could illustrate the confusion of modern experts better than the dramatic about-face Mr. Nixon made Aug. 15 when he switched over to direct controls, and Phases 1 and 2.

Things haven't got worse since then, and in some directions they have got better — but very slowly. Few people here think the riddle has been solved.

Foremost of these for awhile was the monetarist school of Milton Friedman of Chicago, arguing that the real neglected item was the money factor: the amount of money in circulation, controlled largely by the Federal Reserve System.

The high peak of that theory cmae in the 1971 budget, when supporters of Mr. Friedman played a big role at the White House. Now the Friedman theory is no longer looked upon as a cure-all. Everybody is a little bit Friedman-esque these days, it is commented here, but events seem to show the manipulation of the money supply is no panacea.

NOW A COUPLE of new theories are being gingerly explored by politicians and economists, some of whom are frankly baffled.

They say that after all the administration has been doing to correct the economy (spurred on by a presidential campaign), something must be askew if unemployment still hangs around 6 per cent, plant capacity is only 75 per cent utilized, and the dollar is still in more danger on the world markets than the public generally realizes.

In its concern the Joint Economic Committee, under Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., for the first time has called in witnesses who frankly call themselves radical.

Typical, for example, is Barry Bluestone of Boston College. He holds that large government expenditures on defense distort the whole economy.

THE ESSENCE of a complex analysis by Mr. Bluestone is that investment capital seek its most profitable outlet. His two steps are:

1. In terms of direct federal purchase from the private sector in 1970, $82.2 billion, or 78 per cent of a budgeted total of $105.6 billion, was earmarked for the Defense Department;

2. The relative handful of highly specialized and regionally concentrated defense industries have, to a great extent, higher profits and pay higher wages because of government intervention in the marketplace, and these attract capital investment away from other industries which are in the nature of poor relatives.

Ergo, says Mr. Bluestone, the whole spinning top of the American economy is tipped to one side by the defense expenditure tilt or, to put it in the near-incomprehensible jargon of economists, "the process of uneven development has created a dual economic structure which i less and less amenable to macroeconomic pressure."

HOWARD SHERMAN and E. K. Hunt, two professors from the University of California, Riverside, broaden the indictment of the present economic structure. This boils down to the following:

The U.S. economy has become enormously concentrated, far more so than the public realizes.

Presently, in manufacturing, the top 200 firms hold 59 per cent or more of all assets. Among all corporations, in all sectors, "just 958 firms hold 53 per cent of the assets."

In defense "one hundred largest contractors received two-thirds of all military contracts; and just 10 giant firms received almost one-third."

Furthermore, in each industry, "output is dominated by three or four giants" whose profits are normally higher, whose costs per unit are lower, whose advertising is greater, and whose price-fixing power transcends the normal laws of supply and demand or even of government controls.

These semi-monopoly industries, the professors add, are now largely international, and extend their profits by manipulating exchange rates and benefitting from the blocked dollars abroad, amounting to about $50 billion, which operate to give them almost interest-free loans.

Something is wrong somewhere, it is argued, when despite billions poured into relief and welfare, the disparity between the rich and poor in America has continued about the same for a generation.

Applause rings out as Rev. Wesley Frensdorff of Salt Lake City (center), escorted by Rt. Rev. Robert C. Most Schools Still Dragging Their Feet

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Nearly 10 years have gone by since the Supreme Court told public schools that, while they cannot require children to pray, they can and should teach objectively about religion.

A relatively few schools — perhaps 200 in the entire country —have taken up the court's invitation to enrich their curriculums with nonsectarian courses in biblical literature, comparative religion, and the role that religion has played in national and world history.

But the vast majority of America's public schools still are dragging their feet on this matter —with the result that a whole generation is growing up ignorant of what has been through countless centuries a major area of human activity and concern.

But that simply is not true, and never has been true. All the court held unconstitutional was the practice of beginning the school day with a miniature worship service.

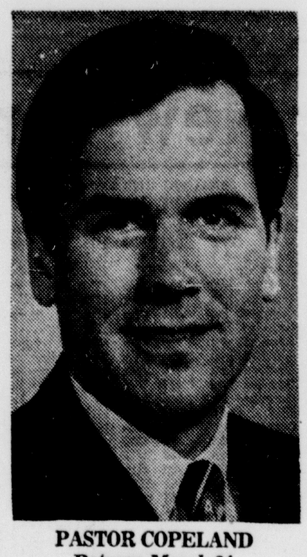

The court said, in effect: As an agency of the state, schools cannot interfere with freedom of religion by requiring any child to say a particular prayer at a particular time. It did not place any limitation on voluntary private prayer, and went out of its way to encourage objective study of the Bible and religious history.

Instead of pushing their community schools to add good courses on religion, many religious people have expended their energy in recent years trying to amend the Constitution to authorize voluntary prayer in schools —something that already is entirely permissible. Now an interfaith effort is being organized to promote "constitutionally acceptable and educationally appropriate" religion courses in public schools across the nation.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish groups and the National Education Association are working together through a newly formed "National Council on Religion and Public Education."

One of its founders, Rabbi Arthur Gilbert, said the new council takes the position that schools "have the obligation to teach about the Bible for no other reason than that it is the primary source for the values and institutions that have shaped western civilization."

"It is scandalous," he said, "that the secular school system has avoided this encounter with the most challenging work of literature produced by man."

GOD AND MAN

This Church's Bird Surely Pleases God

By LOUIS CASSELS
U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The church my wife and I attend is 130 years old. With great age, it has acquired —as some human beings do —a gentle tolerance for foibles and eccentricities that would upset younger persons or institutions.

On a recent Sunday, we were walking up the gravel driveway toward the white-columned front entrance just before start of the 11 o'clock service. Ahead of us were two women. I recognized one as a member of the congregation. The other apparently was an out-of-town visitor.

Nearing the entrance, the visitor chanced to look up into the overhanging branches of a massive magnolia tree.

"My God!" she cried, in what I feel sure was an impromptu prayer. "Look at that big bird!"

"That's no bird," said her hostess soothingly. "That's St. Francis."

I could not discern that this reply was immediately clarifying or comforting to the visitor. If anything, she seemed more thunderstruck than before.

"St. Francis," the hostess went on after a very long moment, "is the church chicken."

She did not volunteer further explanation and the visitor, understandably wary of asking any more questions, tottered on into church, slowly shaking her head.

St. Francis really is a chicken and she's been around our church so long it just doesn't occur to members that her presence may come as a shock to strangers.

No one seems able to recall just when she joined our congregation. The gardener says "she just walked in and took up here" several years ago.

The rector made some comment about feeling like St. Francis, who preached the gospel to birds and animals, so naturally everyone started calling our chicken St. Francis.

Cracked corn is provided regularly in the church budget to keep St. Francis in provender. Her housing presents no problem, since she has elected to roost in the magnolia tree.

On very cold mornings, St. Fraccis tends to remain in the tree huddled against nst the chill. But on sunny days, she walks back and forth along the gravel walk, greeting parishioners as they arrive and depart.

She is a very dignified chicken, but I was unable to ascertain anything about her background or lineage.

"Is she a Rhode Island Red?" I asked a lady who takes an active part in parish affairs and who generally can be relied upon to know everything about everyone.

"Oh, I don't think so," she replied. "She's just a chicken chicken."

There isn't any theological significance to this story. But if God has the sense of humor I confidently attribute to Him, I feel sure he derives as much pleasure from St. Francis and her membership in our congregation as He does from any of the anthems, hymns and prayers which we offer to Him inside the church.

He Saved A Lot Of Lives And Put A Lot Of Youths In Jobs

I-J Special Report

You can almost tell by the set of his jaw that Columban Father Tom Shaughnessy of Chicago is a stubborn man.

And it's probably a good thing that he is.

When Hermegildo Erato first met the missioner at Isabela, the Philippines, he faced almost certain death from gangrene. One glance at Eeato's badly swollen foot told the priest that the pain pills in the youth's hand would do little good.

Erato needed to go to the hospital immediately. But Shaughnessy knew he couldn't afford it. As a "tao," a day laborer on a sugar plantation, Erato made only four pesos a day — and just rice for his family costs almost that much.

There's no welfare at Isabela, no Medicaid, no workmen's compensation. Though the hospitals do what charity they can, they aren't able to care for the overwhelming number of people who need their services.

But the missionary was too stubborn to let Erato go off to die painfully in his bamboo hut. With the help of the pastor, Columban Father Michael Cullen, Shaughnessy found a Chinese surgeon to care for Erato, and friends in the U.S. offered to pay the hospital bill.

For two months Erato's fight for life went on. Finally he won the battle — but he lost his leg. The missioners obtained crutches for him, and later an artificial leg. He's now adept enough that he can play basketball.

With the left-over funds, Shaughnessy, who took over as pastor of the parish when Cullen became ill, obtained drugs that saved more than 50 tubercular patients from almost certain death. Sixty of the poorest families also obtained new roofs for their huts.

Shaughnessy now has two self-help projects under way to help hundreds of teen-agers in the area who have had no jobs and no hope of finding work.

AT WORK — With Columban Father Tom Shaughnessy's help, Hermegildo Erato (seated at sewing machine) is alive and learning a trade along with other teen-agers in the Philippine village of Isabela.

After buying and borrowing a few sewing machines, Shaughnessy hired a tailor to teach girls to sew. More than 50 have graduated and are earning a living, and 27 others are currently enrolled in the course.

Shaughnessy also started a small factory to make senilas (sandals). He now has 11 youths, including Erato, employed, and local housewives, who help sell the senilas, can afford to buy a fish or meat to go with their rice.

A native of Chicago, Shaughnessy attended St. Gertrude's, Lourdes, and St. Jerome's schools there. After studying at various Columban seminaries, he was ordained in 1966 and came to the Philippines the following year.

MANILA (UPI)—An exact replica in suburban San Jose del Monte of the grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in France has acquired as much fame internationally as it has domestically. The guest books at the grotto list foreign devotees from the United States, Japan and European countries.

$202,000 Given To Aid Agencies

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) —The World Relief Committee of the American Baptist convention in 1971 distributed a total of $202,373 to various agencies for the relief of human suffering, Dr. W. Hubert Porter, secretary of the committee, reports.

Most of the relief project donations ($78,211) went to Church World Service, the relief arm of the World Council of Churches, Dr. Porter said.

DRAMA REVIEW

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

The wit of Oscar Wilde, played against a London of 1972 and flashy British attire, proved a pleasant combination last night as the College of Marin Drama Department opened a 12-performance run of "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Using the Fine Arts Building's studio theater for the production was an excellent choice. Wilde's sharp dialogue is ideally suited to such an intimate setting.

Considered to be Wilde at his best, "Earnest" is a mockery of the British upperclass in the highly moralistic Victorian period. The playwright blends secret identities and comic blunderings to make the play a highly delightful satirical souffle.

It is rather senseless to explore the plot any further than to say all the lovers live happily ever after. As the playbill says, it's a work of "trivial comedy for serious people."

Some of Wilde's barbs are priceless gems — so easily applied to any period. The playwright is lyrically satirical when he says "half of modern culture depends upon what one should say" or "it's very vulgar to talk about business."

"THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST" — A play in three acts by Oscar Wilde. Presented by the College of Marin Department of Theater Arts. Directed by Ronald Krempetz; sets by Krempetz; design executed by Alonso D. Gonzalez. The cast: Algernon Moncreiff, Sheldon Lipkin; Lane, his servant, Mark Schwarz; John Worthing (Earnest), Howard McMaster; Lady Bracknell, Denise Orr; Gwendolyn Fairfax, Robin Buckley; Cecily Cardew, Karyn Nikas; Miss Prism, Bette Besuner; Revered Chasuble, Robin Williams, and Merriman, Worthing's butler, William Childs.

Ronald Krempetz in his first directorial assignment has packaged the play nicely. For the most part, the cast maintains a high level of characterization.

The cast also did an admiral job with the crisp, clipped English accent so necessary for Wilde's prose. Whem members of the cast did slip, it slowed the pace of the play. This was evident in Act II.

The two young playboys were handled well by Sheldon Lipkin (Algernon Moncrieff) and Howard McMaster (John Worthing-Earnest). It7was as much fun to watch Lipkin's facial expressions as his line delivery.

Their sweethearts were played by Robin Buckley (Gwendolyn Fairfax) and Karyn Nikas (Cecily Cardew). The two were delightful in their second act "tea" confrontation.

However, the real winner of the opener was Denise Orr as Lady Bracknell. Miss Orrr has an excellent comic flair and she displayed it admirably as the social-climbing "blueblood."

Robin Williams as Revered Chasuble and Bette Besuner as Miss Prism rounded out the key members of the cast very well.

The sets were first rate. With Krempetz updating the play's setting to the present period, the first act set (Algernon's living room) was all white and chrome. The garden setting for the remaining two acts had that pure English countryside feeling. And the costumes, too, were rich and very modish looking.

An interesting sidelight is found in the evening's playbill. Women's liberation seems in full force in the drama department, as 'Ms' precedes the young actresses' names.

The play continues today at 8 p.m. It will also be performed on a Wednesday through Sunday schedule through March 25.

'Mock Doctor' Is Crisp 18th Century Fluffery

By KAY KSANDA

A historic piece of Elizabethan fluff was aired last night in Angelico Hall at San Rafael's Dominican College.

More modern than Shakespeare, "The Mock Doctor" was 18th Century comedy by the then famous comedy team of Moliere and Fielding. More correctly called "ballad opera," the play had 17 airs, 11 actors and actresses, fabulous costumes and a ho-hum plot.

For those who like this sort of charm, this was the true jewel long lost in the forest of today's rock shows and recitals.

Produced by the American Music Research Center, through the Music Department of Dominican College, the story was about a quack doctor in wig and fine rainment. He had become a physician by a mistaken-identity gimmic, perpetrated by his shrewish wife.

He wore his identity as well as he fitted his new fine clothes, for at this time in history, they were still "leeching" and diagnosing illnesses from "ill-humors." His degree was his ability to charge a high fee, and an awareness of fools.

The opening scene was truly charming. Two footmen, in wigs, three-cornered hats, and satin breeches, lit carriage lamps at each side of the stage, then pulled the curtain to show the setting and the musicians.

Here was the real magic: a tableau, probably timeless: The cello, the harpsichord and the flute, all three accompanists in pristine white satin britches, handsome coats, and french lace. The music stands were draped in velvet with appliqued roses. You just don't see that kind of staging anymore, not that you ever might have seen it anywhere except in a court painting.

The plot was one of those romance situations where true love is thwarted by an insufficient bank balance. The phony doctor has been called in to cure a beautiful girl who has become mute after learning she is to marry Lord "somebody-or-other."

Her true love is a real nut, who also wears satin britches, and seems to be more of a fop than a hero.

In the singing area, Jerry Dixon, with a full rich deep baritone, came off tops as the father of the malingering mute, Charlotte.

The two leads, the doctor and his wife, played by Clay Roni and Bettina Weinstein, just didn't seem to get together, although their voices were clear, warm, and nice to hear. She threw things at him, and he beat and boxed her ears, but it wasn't quite believable; their hearts weren't in it.

All the cast was good. Director Dan Caldwell has done a crisp and authentic picture of the "theater of the times." The blending of the charming music by Sister Mary Dominic for the trio, that stayed on stage, was always consistent and melodic.

The last performance of "Mock Doctor" was a matinee today.

Special Teacher Session Monday

A special meeting of the Dixie School District board has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday to discuss possible elimination of 10 teaching positions for the 1972-73 school year, according to Supt. Clifford Campbell.

Faced with an anticipated drop in enrollment of 200 students, a negligible teacher turnover and returning teachers, Campbell said the board is forced to consider personnel cuts.

"With our tight budget and all these returning teachers, we're in real trouble," he said. The meeting will be in district offices on Trellis Drive.

Hub Alternative's Candidate Choices

The San Anselmo branch of Marin Alternative has endorsed Dr. Martin Blinder and Jack Burr for the San Anselmo City Council election in April, according to executive director Mimi Beall.

Blinder and Burr qualified for the organization's endorsement by obtaining at least 70 per cent of the vote at a meeting on March 2 at Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo.

Morale Problems Due Discussion

Staff members from the Marin Community Mental Health Center are to appear at a Wednesday meeting of the Mental Health Advisory Board of Marin to discuss whether morale problems of the facility are hurting patient care.

Staff psychiatrists and psychologists are thought to be unhappy because they have not been granted a 5.5 per cent raise asked for.

The advisory board will meet at 8 p.m. in the coral room of Marin General Hospital.

Damage At $100,000 To Sonoma Jail

SANTA ROSA (UPI)—The Sonoma County Jail was still in shambles today after inmates set fires, broke furniture, and smashed plumbing fixtures and reinforced glass windows before being subdued and transferred to San Quentin Prison.

"We are cleaning up the debris and making revairs, but it will probably be next week before we have the jail secure," said sheriff's captain Robert Hayes.

The 115 inmates will remain at San Quentin in the meantime.

Hayes said the trouble began late Thursday by a small number of "instigators" who had been agitating inmates over the food served.

"We of course, don't think it's justified at all," Hayes said.

The rioting inmates were not "political type" prisoners, he said.

Graves Ends Magee Ties; Fees In Air

By MARY LEYDECKER

The Los Angeles lawyer who has been paid almost $30,000 for representing San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee was successful yesterday in his attempt to get out of the case, but received a tongue-lashing from a judge in Marin.

Furthermore, Ernest L. Graves, an orator of the old school who has made a specialty of Death Row cases, was told by visiting Judge Leonard Ginsburg that the whole matter of the fees was to be turned over to county officials for an investigation.

Last month Graves had asked out of the case, saying his "contract" to represent Magee was void because research had led him to believe Magee should be allowed to act as his own attorney, as he wants to.

"If you were paid under an invalid contract, then the money should be returned," the judge told Graves yesterday.

Graves objected to money being the main topic of discussion in Marin Superior Court yesterday, but Judge Ginsburg, assigned to the case from Tulare County, opened the session by saying, "I intend to see it is referred to at length."

Graves then claimed he had had an agreement with an earlier judge in the case who had appointed him last May that records of his fees not be made public until the case was completed.

Since this was not done, Graves said, "I have been harassed by the press and harassed by public officials.

In releasing Graves from the case, Ginsburg said he couldn't force the attorney to represent Magee, but said he considered Graves's action a "breach of contract."

Ginsburg was referring the whole matter to the county counsel's office, he said.

Upon hearing the news, County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney responded that "If Mr. Graves concedes the contract was invalid, he should return the money."

County-Auditor Controller Michael Mitchell said he had a check on his desk yesterday afternoon for $6,562 for payment of December and January fees to Graves but that he was not going to give the check to the lawyer until the matter is clarified.

Meanwhile, Graves's former client, Magee, was turned down once again in his request to be his own laywer. Judge Ginsburg said, "Mr. Magee has disrupted the proceedings so much that it would be impossible to proceed with himself as counsel."

He told Magee, however, that he might be able to act as cocounsel if he behaves himself. Magee responded that Ginsburg's move was "part of an overall conspiracy to yoke me with a lawyer" and he called the judge a "very racist man."

The judge asked Novato attorney Robert D. Carrow to consider representing Magee. Carrow, who has been assisting Graves, agreed to talk to Magee.

See Page M2

Stamps And Humanitarianism

Katherine Shortridge of Tiburon has been providing Red Cross services to military families since she joined the humanitarian organization almost 20 years ago — and she has been an amateur collector of Red Cross stamps since 1953.

Kay, as Mrs. Shortridge prefers to be called by those veterans, military personnel and their dependents she serves, is now a member of the staff of the American National Red Cross, Western Area, in San Francisco.

The centenary Red Cross year inspired Kay to start collecting and to form an interesting topical collection of all the Red Cross stamps issued to honor the international organization by the114 countries who have national Red Cross societies.

THE PANAMA centenary was the most difficult for Kay to acquire to complete her collection. Panama issued a commemorative stamp, but then withdrew it. She did not elaborate on her methods of acquiring it, but Panama is included in Kay's collection.

Nearly all the Red Cross stamps are identified by the Red Cross as a part of the design or as an overprint in crimson. In Moslem countries, however, the cross is an unwelcome symbol, and the equivalent symbol is a crescent in red. In Iran the symbol is the Red Lion and Sun.

She wrote to the International Committee of Red Cross headquarters in Geneva for further information with the idea of collecting every Red Cross stamp issued during the first 100 years of the voluntary relief organization's history.

She found that the International Committee of the Red Cross was founded in 1863 by Jean Henri Dunant. He was awarded the first Nobel Peace Prize in 1901 while living in a poor house, having spent all of his money furthering the cause of what was to become of the Red Cross.

DURING A TRIP to Italy in 1858, Dunant found himself at Solferino, where a battle took place between Franco-Italian troops under Napoleon III and the Austrian army under Franz-Joseph. Nearly 44,000 troops were lost in the engagement.

The gentle Dunant was deeply disturbed by the sight of the thousands of abandoned wounded, and called upon the local population to help him care for them.

Such a committee, later to become the International Committee of the Red Cross, was established in Geneva in 1863. The following year the heads of 12 nations signed the first Geneva Convention, adopting the code which was the basis of today's Red Cross.

THE ICRC NOW acts as the neutral intermediary between nations at war or during rebellions, to protect victims of war in accordnace with the provisions of the Geneva Conventions accords.

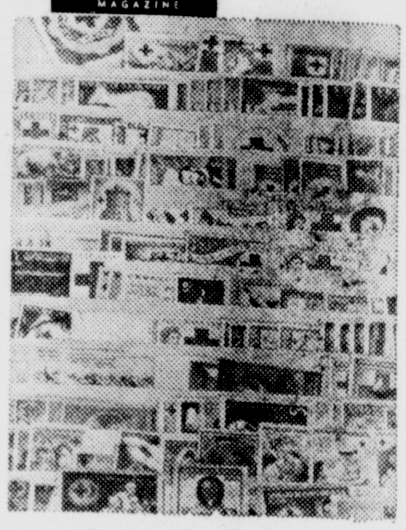

Committee delegates visit and inspect military and civilian prisoner-of-war camps, arrange for transport and delivery of mail and food packages to detainees, and in war areas distribute emergency relief and provide staff and supplies for medical care.

The committee also operates a central tracing agency, which serves as a universal information bureau concerning prisoners of war, and also conducts an international tracing service to search for persons missing because of war and civil strife.

A Tribute To Red Cross In Stamps

A WORLD WAR I postcard with a festive picture scene carried the greetings of the canteen service of the American Red Cross, a much appreciated group by the U.S. doughboys and sailors.

AMONG THE most prized pieces in the Red Cross stamp collection of Kay Shortridge are the North Vietnamese stamps at the bottom of this album page. At top are four Venezuelan stamps.

THE INTERNATIONAL headquarters of the Red Cross in Geneva, Switzerland, issued this official commemorative envelope marking the 100th anniversary of the organization in 1963. It is included in the collection of Kay Strawbridge of Tiburon of Red Cross stamps and other postal memorabilia paying tribute to the humanitarian organization.

Marin Woman's Collection Tells Much Of History

Of The Humanitarian Organization That Had Its

Beginnings On An Italian Battlefield A Century Ago

KAY SHORTRIDGE of Tiburon, Red Cross worker and stamp collector, checks the distinctive red crescent of the centenary stamp issued by the United Arab Republic in honor of the humanitarian agency against standards set forth in a book issued by the Red Cross Stamp Study Circle. The circle is an international organization of collectors.

The first stamp honoring the founder of the Red Cross was issued by Switzerland on the 100th anniversary of Dunant's birth in 1928.

THE RED CROSS has grown through the years until now its humanitarian work is carried out in virtually every independent country in the world by independent national Red Cross societies. One of the newest is the Bangladesh Red Cross Society which is working closely with the ICRC in relief actions being organized there.

Clara Barton formed the American Assn. of the Red Cross in 1881 in Washington, D.C. the organization was reincorporated as the American National Red Cross in 1893. By 1948 the United States issued a three-cent red stamp honoring Miss Barton as founder of the American Red Cross.

WHEN A NEW Huck multicolor web-fed press was developed at the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing in 1953, it was first used for printing a bi-color blue and red three-cent stamp honoring the International Red Cross.

Some unusual issues of Red Cross stamps are known as charity issues. These have two values showing on each stamp. One value is to prepay postage, the other intended to benefit the Red Cross.

Semi-postal stamps, first issued by France during World War I, are a source of Red Cross revenue utilized by European countries and the Philippines which Kay would like to see introduced in the United States.

One interesting mistake Kay would have liked to have included in her collection is a 1959 issue by New Zealand. A limited number of stamps were printed by error without the Red Cross in the flag. The top row of six stamps of four sheets were discovered with the red cross lacking.

Kay had to abandon her overall plan when she reached 500 and found that 27,500 different Red Cross Samps had been issued between 1863 and 1963.

Many other collectors share Kay's interest in Red Cross stamps and have formed collections issued to raise funds for the Red Cross, to honor the organization or its founder, or of those issued by one country or a related group of countries.

COLLECTORS OF Red Cross stamps also have an international society, the Red Cross Stamp Study Circle, which fixes standards to which the stamps must conform to be acceptable to it.

Profile Of A Marinite

"We must face the fact that because we have a limited air resource, we can only put so much air contaminant into that resource," says Milton Feldstein of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District. "We have to look at the maximum capacity under the worst meteorological conditions, and that will determine the allocation of land-use."

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Milton Feldstein of Terra Linda, armed with expertise as a toxicologist, used to fight crime. Now he uses the same science to fight air pollution.

As director of technical services for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, he is way out front in the district's increasingly aggressive role in controlling the pollution that arouses the most public outcry.

Feldstein's work in toxicology, the science of poisons and their effect on living organisms, began after his graduation in 1939 from City College of New York, where he got his Bachelor of Science Degree in chemistry. Working as a technician in a New York hospital laboratory, he developed new methods of determining minute amounts of substances in blood.

After World War II service in the Sanitary Corps, he got his Master's Degree in biochemistry at the University of Buffalo School of Medicine. There he completed all of his academic work toward a doctorate in toxicology.

IT WAS WHILE studying and teaching at Buffalo that he started working in crime detection. The county had just set up a medical examiner system, and Feldstein was hired to establish its toxicology laboratory.

There he further developed new procedures to detect and measure tissues for unknowns when there was no clue to the cause of death, and also to find alcohol in blood.

These techniques, he explained in an office surrounded on three sides with floor-to-ceiling shelves jammed with technical publications, enabled technicians to find any of some 100,000 different substances by screening out broad categories to pinpoint the kind of substance.

FELDSTEIN'S WORK also helped solve several murders, and he became an expert court witness in hundreds of drunk driving cases.

An especially interesting case, he recalled, was one in which his laboratory techniques implicated a man who killed his wife by running a hose from a car exhaust into her bedroom.

The hose was found in the trunk of the man's car, and Feldstein — depending on blood's high affinity for attracting carbon monoxide — was able to detect traces of the poisonous gas on the inside of the hose by measuring the increase of the gas in blood passed through the hose. As he explained, "I had developed a technique for determining carbon monoxide in blood spectophotometrically by the absorption spectrum of carboxyhemoglobin."

NEW CAR SMOG controls, he noted, would make it far more difficult to do someone in with carbon monoxide. For comparison, pre-1966 cars emitted a maximum of 126 grams of carbon monoxide a mile, a figure to be cut to three grams a mile by 1975.

Feldstein's transition to air pollution work started in early 1957, when he left the university to set up an industrial hygiene office for the state's labor department. This brought him for the first time into industrial processes and the effects of their contaminants on humans.

This job change coincided months later with the formation of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, and he became one of its first employees. There were 10 on the staff when he arrived; now there are 160.

"IT SEEMED LIKE a very good opportunity to develop a laboratory making use of my background in methodolgy and toxicology, because the same types of microtechniques were used to determine small amounts of material," he said.

Feldstein also found he loved California. He had visited Los Angeles, and when he moved to San Franciaco he thought it was somewhere near Los Angeles. He and his wife, Margaret, a school nurse, live at 687 Cedarberry Lane.

Feldstein was chief of laboratory serviks until 1965, then took his present job. As director of technical services, he is in charge of the laboratory, air monitoring, data analysis and meteorology, and research and planning sections.

AND, GIFTED WITH an ability unusual for a scientist to explain technical things to the lay person, Feldstein frequently is called on to speak for the district before the public.

He gets most enthusiastic when he talks about the research and planning section, the district's newly formed group to assess the impact of future land uses on air quality. Within a few years, this will boil down to the fact that all significant developments will be subject to approval by the district, regardless of approvals by other governmental agencies in the nine-county region.

The section's first job will be to develop a mathematical computer model of the Bay Area so that development plans can be analyzed. At first, the model probably will be too crude to determine the impact on air quality of developments much smaller than a refinery, mill or shopping center.

BUT FELDSTEIN predicted that "down the line, we may have to look at" perfecting it so that it can predict the result of even small housing projects.

Work on such a mathematical model already has begun at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory under the Atomic Energy Commission. "They have a lot of capability in terms of modeling for bomb fallout material," Feldstein noted.

"I honestly feel that the future of air pollution control is in this area. We have reached the law of diminishing returns on putting corks on stacks, and we've reached the economic law of diminishing returns on screwing down on emission requirements," he declared.

AS DIRECTOR OF technical services for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, Milton Feldstein of Terra Linda keeps a watchful eye on smog readings for Northern California. Feldstein first applied his training in toxicology to criminology, but now uses that background to further the Bay Area's objective of cleaner, more wholesome air. "We have a mandate," he says of the district's program.

"THE LARGEST proliferating source of air pollution is the growth of the area, and if this area contineus to grow as it has, this is where the control must be."

These land-use controls will be imposed by the district within two to three years, Feldstein predicted.

Controlling growth may cramp some areas economically, but under the new federal air quality standards, he noted, "economics is a secondary factor," The standards, which every state must meet, are designed to protect the health of the most sensitive persons, he explained.

"WE HAVE A mandate," he said of the standards. "Who is going to say, 'Well, we'll only harm 2 per cent of the population, therefore let's go ahead with this uncontrolled growth.'

"This is the wedge we have," he said.

"This doesn't stifle growth; it reorients growth," he argued. "It may be, for example, that a refinery is quite logically possible in another area of the Bay Area which is much better ventilated and has much better air quality."

As for threats by some industry to flee abroad to avoid increasingly costly air pollution controls, Feldstein said "It's just a matter of time before this becomes international in scope. Everyone is working in this field." Then, he noted, there will be no escape for industry indifferent to air pollution.

EFFECTIVE AIR pollution control, however, needs the backing of a public educated about the complex problem, he said. "The average man in the street really doesn't understand it. To him, it's just air pollution."

In fact, however, it is an immensely complicated and expensive process, and the Bay Area already has some 30,000 sources of air pollution — excluding a million and a half residential sources and excluding the millions of motor vehicles. The state, not the district, controls motor vehicle emissions.

Feldstein also gave low marks to the average student: "They still are not getting the word. Many are concerned with the environment, but they really have not put their teeth into understanding the problems. They jump on causes withgut understanding what the solutions are, and being young, and being impatient, they sometimes want solutions overnight."

BUT HE CREDITED their strident pressure on the district with at least indirectly accelerating control programs.

Feldstein seconded a proposal by others that the state train a cadre of 10,000 to 20,000 "environmentally informed" people.

The public, he said, "must face the fact that because we have a limited air resource, we can only put so much air contaminant into that resource. We have to look at the maximum capacity under the worst meteorological conditions, and that will determine the allocation of land use."

Feldstein acknowledged that he continually finds "that people never heard of the district." Its doings make the news generally only when there is some controversy, he said, "so, unfortunately, most people don't even know that we're around."

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Thanks to the cooperation of four Marin arts organizations, and especially the efforts of six women representing those groups, Marin County now has a Youth in Arts program that is one of only four of its kind in the nation.

The others are at Lincoln Center in New York, in Rhode Island, and in the Seattle, Wash., area.

So successful has this year's Marin pilot program been that in January a $10,000 grant, which guarantees the program's continued existence, was given Youth in Arts by the San Francisco Foundation. The money will be used to continue the program and to provide free seats for disadvantaged children at performances at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

TO DATE, WELL over 25,000 seats have been booked for children from kindergarten through eighth grade in schools all over the county.

The four Marin organizations and the women who began work on the idea some two years ago are: the Marin Junior Theater, represented by Mrs. Gordon Dunn of San Rafael; the Marin Symphony Assn., represented by Mrs. Robert L. Schultz of Mill Valley and Mrs. Joyce Conklin of San Rafael; the Marin Museum Assn. children's art program represented by Mrs. Jay Crotty of San Rafael and Mrs. Martin Koppick of Lucas Valley and the Marin Civic Ballet, represented by Mrs. Max Thelen of San Rafael.

Because of other responsibilities Mrs. Koppick and Mrs. Conklin are no longer active in the Youth in Arts program.

YOUTH IN ARTS is operated as a non-profit venture by a board of directors composed of a representative from each of the participating organizations, with the actual work of running the program performed by volunteers of the Junior Theater Auxiliary organized for that purpose and headed by Mrs. Dunn as coordinator, assisted by Mrs. Alfred Noble of Corte Madera.

"Our aim was to present cultural programs that are not ordinarily available to a large number of students at low cost. We wanted to enhance the cultural arts of Marin students and to stimulate their participation in the arts.

"EACH OF our participating organizations had acquired considerable experience in presenting quality programs for youth, but they had been reaching only a small number of children. The opportunity to reach more came when the 2,080-seat Veterans Building theater opened, and a committee was formed to work on the project.

THANKS TO the pilot Youth in Arts program launched in Marin County last fall and now in the midst of its initial season, thousands of Marin children have been able to enjoy live theater and music performances at the new Marin Veterans Memorial Building. Schools Virgil Hollis, school principals and school district superintendents to see if they were interested enough in our program to bus the children to performances during school hours.

"With their enthusiastic support obtained, we then went to the Marin County Board of Supervisors to see about the use of the civic auditorium."

MRS. DUNN says that with this permission secured, questionnaires were sent to all kindergarten through eighth grade schools in Marin to find out if interest was strong enough to support the program. When the response proved very enthusiastic, the real work began.

Performances were contracted for, and a schedule established and sent out to schools whose principals, teachers and parent-teacher associations were to select from a list provided the programs desired by their classes and to request reservations.

"The county school superintendent granted us an office in the San Clemente School in Corte Madera and agreed to do all our printing free of charge," Mrs. Dunn continues.

"THE COST OF a donation of 35 cents per child requested to help support the series of programs is being borne by school districts and parent-teacher association groups. The only other financial support is $750 contributed by the board of supervisors from the county's economic development fund.

"With the announcement of the programs in the series, the deluge of phone calls to the Youth in Arts office and checks for reservations by mail which arrived in the first few days were overwhelming."

The 1971-72 season, Mrs. Dunn reports, includes programs of symphony, ballet, theater and arts provided at cost by the four participating organizations.

THE MARIN Junior Theater, however, also contracted for performances by the American Conservatory Theater, the Marin Shakespeare Festival, the Jack Cook productions of San Francisco and the Marion Hayes Cain productions of San Anselmo. Next year the other organizations may contract for performances in their field, Mrs. Dunn says.

A wide variety of cultural entertainment is being provided for Marin youngsters, as may be seen from an outline of the programs. They are of a caliber usually available only by going to San Francisco, Mrs. Dunn points out — an expense and inconvenience most parents find not worthwhile.

The Marin Symphony Assn.-sponsored performances under its Music for Minors programs were "Hello World" (November) and "Carnival of the Animals" (February), both with dance and narration and the opera "The Old Maid and the Thief" to be presented on April 11.

MUSIC FOR these presentations is provided through the cooperation of Union Local 6 of the American Federation of Musicians, AFL-CIO. The two other performances the association sponsors are two concerts (January and May 2) by the Marin Youth Orchestra under the direction of Hugo Rinaldi.

The Junior Theater-sponsored programs were the play "Wind in the Willows" (November) presented by the Marin Shakespeare Company; the play "Cinderella" (January) presented by Jack Cook Productions; a puppet show (February) presented by the American Conservatory Theater's Nancy Cole; a play, "The Wonderful Adventures of Pinocchio" (February) by Marion Hayes Cain productions; and the play, "The Fairy Godmother," presented March 7 by the Masque unit of the Junior Theater.

THE MARIN Museum Assn. will present a multi-media art show on March 21 and 22. The Marin Civic Ballet staged the ballet "The Nutcracker" in December and will perform three short ballets in folk, classical and contemporary style on April 25.

Mrs. Dunn adds that Youth in Arts volunteers also provide orientation before performances by going into the schools to do demonstrations in theater and ballet and lectures in other fields.

"We feel that response to the Youth in Arts has been fantastic," she emphasizes, "and we have many new plans for next year.

"THE MOST important one is to hire a coordinator to schedule all performances and arrange orientation. We would also like to hire a technical adviser to act a liaison between the performing groups and the Veterans Memorial Building management.

"We want to incorporate to protect the officers from liability suits. We have a lawyer now, Wayne Kirk of San Rafael, who handles our legal problems free.

"We expect the idea of the Youth in Arts program will spread all over the state. We have already had requests from towns as far away as Willits, who want to bus their children to our performances."

THE YOUTH in Arts Committee believes that Marin County has much to gain in developing the program. Not only will its youth benefit, but new audiences will be created for the Memorial Building, which will become further established with Marin families as the cultural center of the county.

The success of the venture, the committee believes, will surely lead children and their families to seek yet further cultural enrichment in addition to Youth in Arts.

WITH THE CURTAIN up, the members of the audience become totally absorbed in the drama on stage, as the Marin Shakespeare Festival thespians act out the classic story of "The Wind in the Willows."

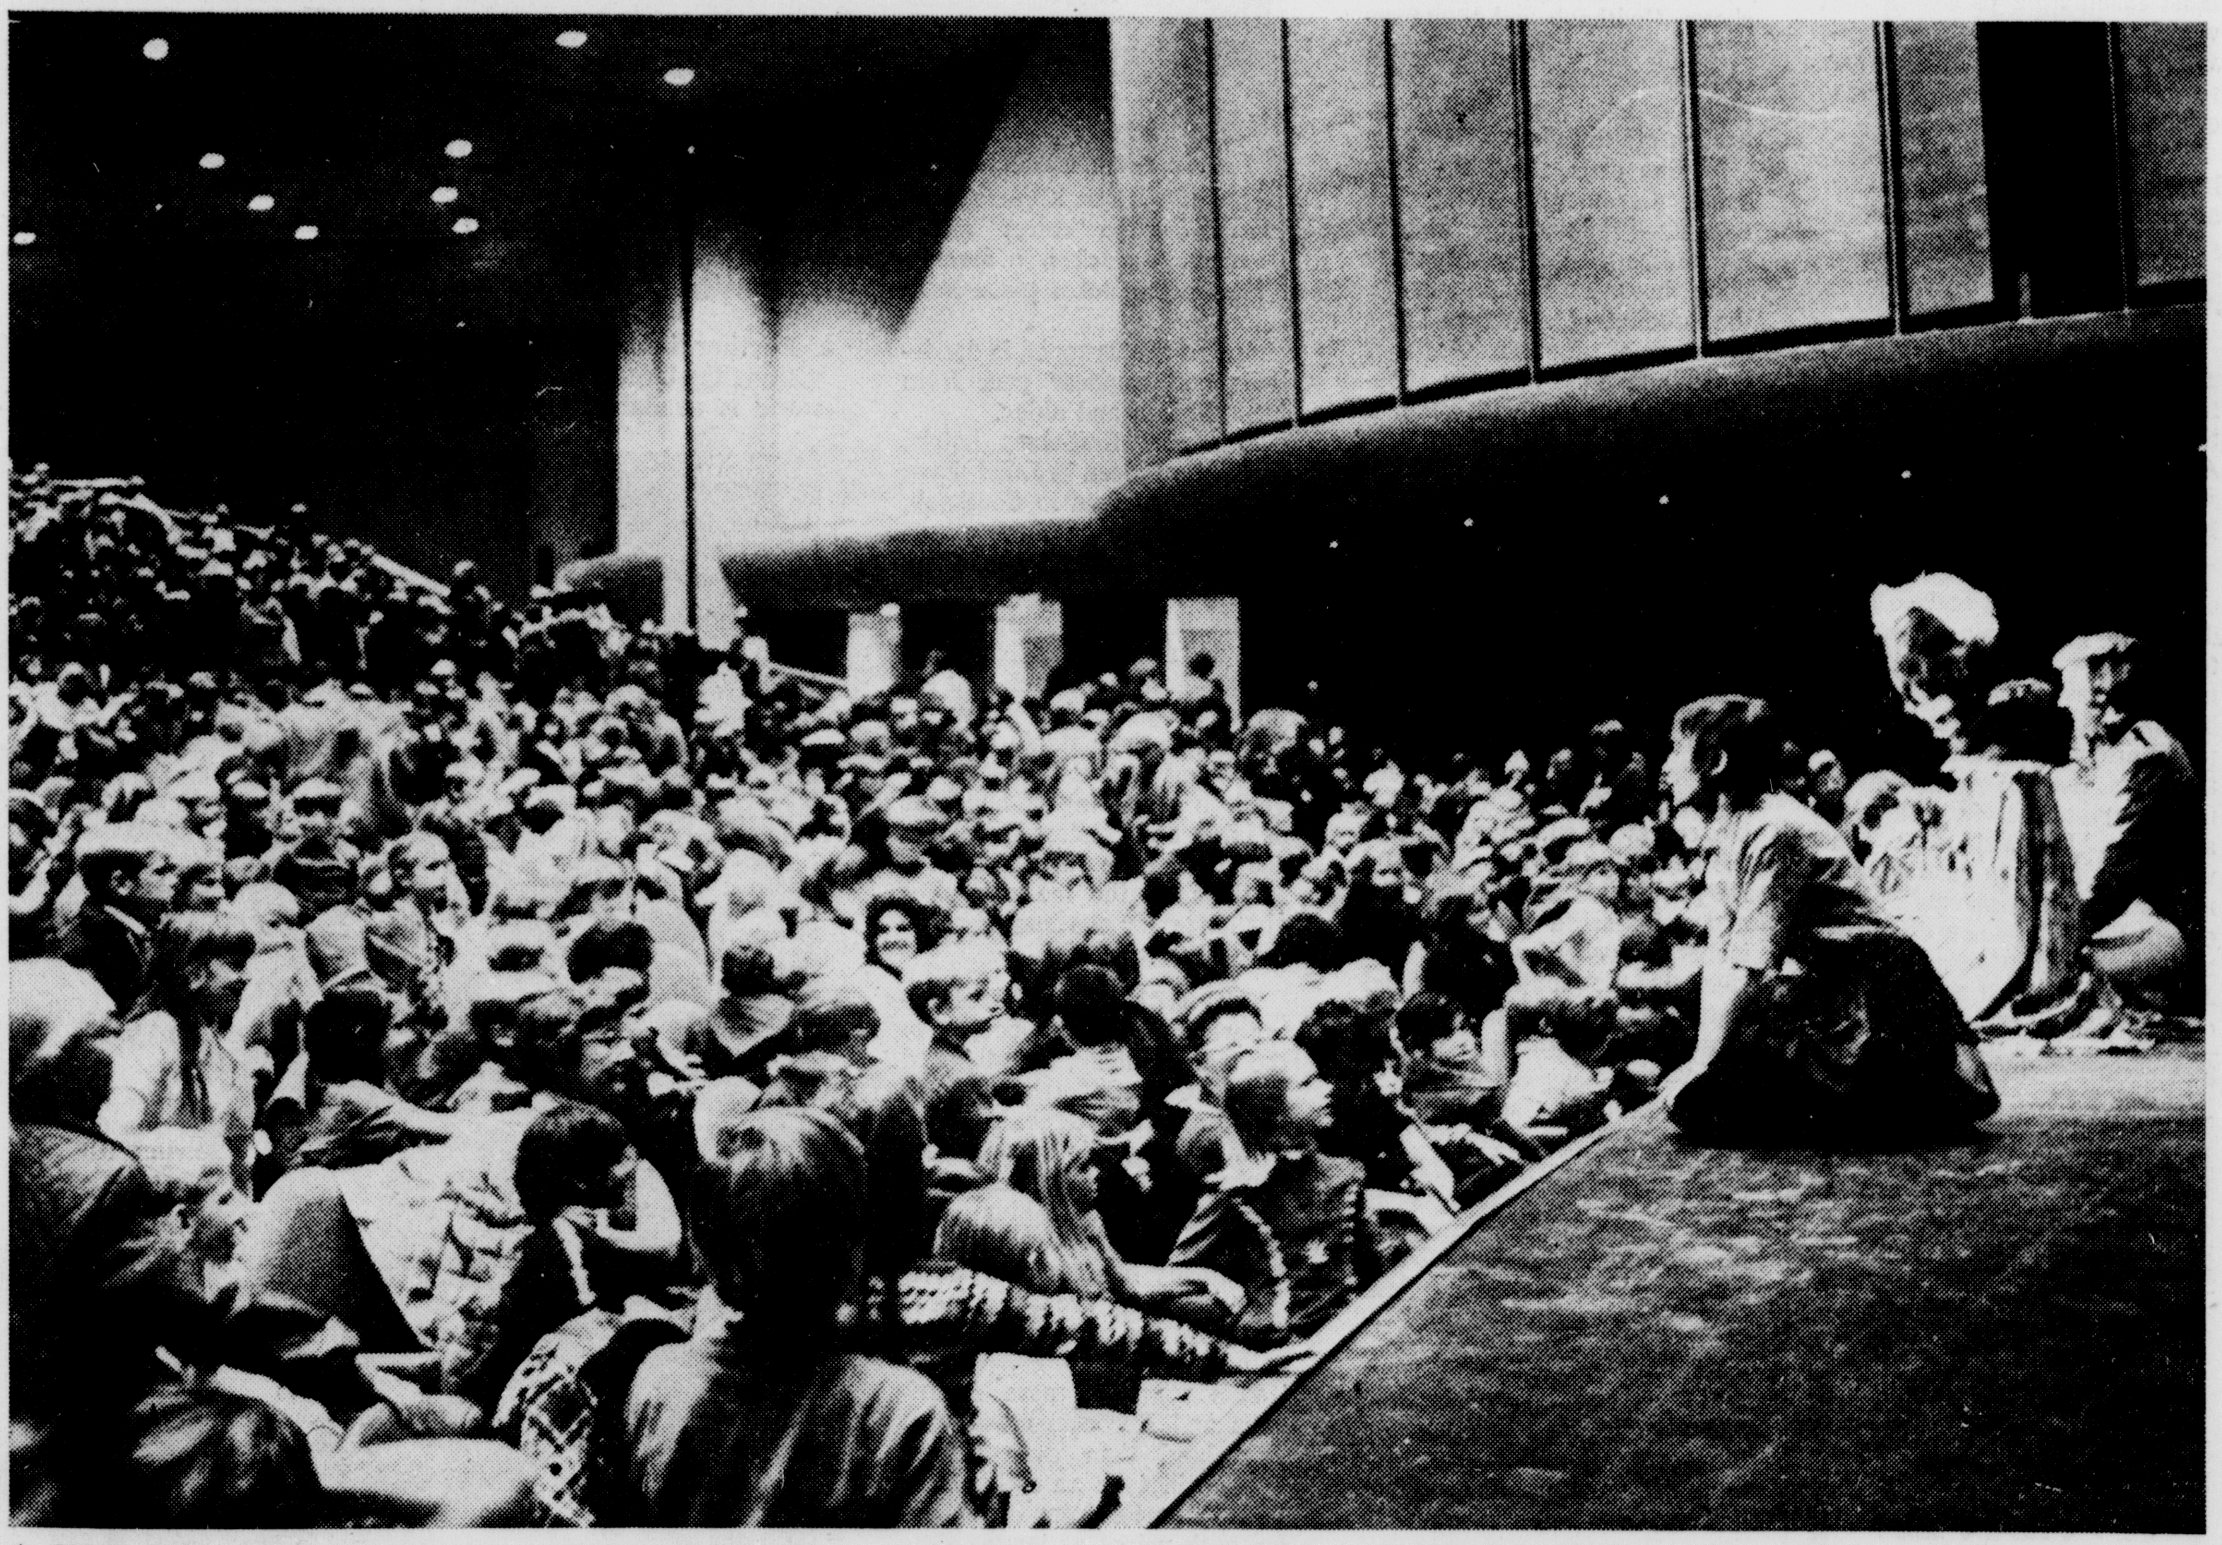

EMOTING on stage for the entertainment of two thousand Marin children are members of the cast of "Cinderella," performed by Jack Cook Productions of San Francisco under Marin's Youth in Arts program auspices at the Veterans Memorial Building.

IT WAS JAN. 11, 1972, the day of the presentation of "Cinderella" by the Jack Cook Productions company of San Francisco State College under auspices of the Youth in Arts program, and these "theater buffs" were walking toward the entrance to the Marin Veterans Memorial Building, preparatory to enjoying the traditional children's classic.

A CLOSE RAPPORT between the actors on stage and the young members of the audiences is one of the aims of Marin County's pilot Youth in Arts program. Here members of the cast of "Cinderella" come to the front, centerstage, to answer questions from the children in the audience after the completion of their performance in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Greenland — A Different Place To See

Frozen Fjords, Icebergs Are Scenic Attractions

But this does not necessarily mean that it is as easy to travel around on Greenland as it is on Hans Christian Andersen's island of Funen or along the Danish Riviera from Copenhagen to Hamlet's town of Elsinore.

It is actually still rather complicated to move around on Greenland. Many places can actually only be reached by dog-sleigh or helicopter, even during the summer. Most of the fjords are frozen nine months a year except the Discobay, accessible five months a year.

But that, of course, is what makes this island one of the most fascinating places in the world to visit. With its unspoiled greatness and its unique scenery it is well worth all the efforts.

Greenland is seven times larger than the British Isles or about 840,000 square miles. The greater part of Greenland is situated to the north of the Arctic Circle.

Along the coast there are granite mountains up to 12,247 feet high and behind them, in the interior, the immense Ice Age glacier measuring 708,290 square miles in area and up to 1.8 miles in thickness.

Even if no visa is required for entering Greenland and no fundamental permission is needed to go there (except for some military bases that are out of bounds), you should make detailed preparations before going there as there are extremely few tourist accommodations available. In most cases you will have to sleep in dormitories or in modest private rooms except for the two new comfortable hotels in Godthaab and Jacobshavn as well as the older ones in Sondre Stromfjord and Narssarssuaq. Advance reservations are therefore necessary.

If you plan to travel on your own, write directly to the Ministry for Greenland, Hausergade 3, Copenhagen K, regarding local transportation and accomodations.

ONE OF THE world's most awesome sights — the breaking off of icebergs into the sea — is now available for adventure-seekers this summer through a selection of package tours that include charter flights from Copenhagen and ship cruises along Greenland's dramatic west coast.

From June through August, SAS charters will regularly depart the Danish capital taking tourists to western coastal Greenland cities such as Jacobshavn, Godthaab and Narssarssuaq, where they will board coastal steamers to watch the gigantic icebergs which have broken off the glaciers.

As one sails along the west coast, Greenland's inland ice cap rises behind the coastal mountains like a giant white back, barren and shimmering, the product of snowfalls since the dawn of time. Five-sixths of Greenland lies under a two-mile-thick ice cap with never a thaw.

THIS VAST mass of ice makes its way through the valleys as glaciers into the fjords. There the edges break off — or "calve" — up to half a mile long and over 300 feet high. These are the icebergs which topple with a deafening crash, whipping up a giant tidal wave.

Here time has stood still. Jacobshavn Fjord, packed with floating icebergs of indescribable colors in summer, suggest the beginning of the world. The ice pushes out at 60 feet a day and sails south to meet with icebergs pushed out from glaciers in the south Greenland fjords. In platoons they march south into the Atlantic and melt and vanish.

Approaching Greenland by sea through the islands, one feels it is deserted. Only the screaming of a few birds breaks the stillness. Towns are few and look like colorful doll houses thrown against the base of a white wall.

WHEN SUMMER arrives, it thaws a brim of greenery around the ice cap and unlocks the frozen fjords. Since summers are short, plants luxuriate quickly, for night is light as day. Flowers and berries abound, and it's time for Greenlanders to, literally, make hay. Ancient crumbling farms and churches are wrapped in dandelions and reindeer peer from behind birch and alder.

Two new first-class hotels, the White Falcon in Jakobshavn and the Gronland in Godthaab, the capital, make shore excursions a pleasure these days. And a local helicopter line makes it easy to jump to distant towns such as Narssarssuaq, where fishermen still engage in primitive ways of hauling in their staple of life.

A jaunt into the interior reveals a scattering of hundreds of lakes and treeless rock landscape. A little farther in, the foothills of the ice cap offer challenge for the summertime snow-hiker.

THE ORIGINAL Greenlanders were the Eskimo people. In the tenth century, Eric the Red from Iceland settled in the land, and the Greenlanders' culture today, his mass media, books, songs and legends, are a pleasant blend of Eskimo, Indian and Danish. Greenlanders are mostly hunters and fishermen, but many are beginning to recognize the rewards of developing tourism.

This summer, more Americans and Europeans will visit Greenland than ever before. Many will take an eight, 10 or 14-day charter from Copenhagen, with prices as low as $510. Others will fly from Iceland on trips from one to eight days, with prices as low as $75.

Further information about visiting the largest island in the world is available through the Danish National Tourist Office, Scandinavia House, 505 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017.

THE BEAUTIFUL ICEBERGS off Greenland's western coast are the "calves" that have broken off from mammoth glaciers, a spectacular show by Mother Nature that takes place in June, July and August, and which can now be witnessed by tourists participating in special summer season charter flights out of Copenhagen. The show is viewed from the decks of coastal steamers at sea.

THE NATIVES of Greenland can be pretty as well as friendly. This comely miss in the colorful costume of her island home is Cecille from Narssaq.

Know Customs Rules And Avoid Grief

The Travel Pages

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Did you know that U.S. Customs regulations prohibit Americans returning from abroad to bring home liquor-filled candies?

Or that tourists are permitted to bring duty free no more than a quarter pint of perfume into Britain, one quart of liquor into France, 400 cigarettes into West Germany, and two still cameras and 10 rolls of film and one movie camera with 10 reels into Italy?

KNOWING WHAT can be taken in and out legally could save you embarrassment, if not time and money, here and overseas.

Customs regulations differ from country to country. Your travel agent, carrier or other authoritative source should be able to provide pertinent tips before departure.

Violation of customs rules can be punishable by confiscation — and sometimes destruction — of prohibited or restricted items, heavy fines and even prison terms.

MANY COUNTRIES have restrictions on the amont of liquor, tobacco, perfume, foodstuffs and other articles that may be brought in by the visitor without paying duty. And while personal belongings generally are admitted free, gifts for friends must be declared and could be liable to tax.

Some countries, including the Soviet Union, prohibit the import and export of their currencies and impose severe penalties on violators. Others have strict limitations on the amount of their money that can be brought in or taken out.

There is no ceiling on the amount of money the American can take with him abroad or bring back to the United States. But there are restrictions on lots of other things, in addition to liquor-filled candies and narcotics.

PROHIBITED ITEMS also include "hard core" pornography, lottery tickets, most wild birds, their eggs, skins and feathers, some animal skins, switchblade knives, and most meats, fruits, vegetables, plants and other agricultural products.

Barred also, at this writing, is anything from North Vietnam, North Korea and Cuba — and that includes cigars made of Cuban tobacco. The longtime ban on goods from Communist China was lifted in 1970.

Now, mainland China is included among world nations from which Americans may bring back up to $100 worth of purchases in each calendar month duty-free provided the articles accompany the buyer. Everything over the $100 duty-free allowance is subject to duty and the 10 per cent import surcharge.

AMERICANS returning from or via the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam or American Samoa are given an additional $100 exemption, for a total of $200 per person. They also may include one gallon of liquor in the exemption as compared to the one quart limit for adults elsewhere.

Incidentally, a wife and husband, and parents traveling with children, may lump their exemptions. Minors are entitled to the same duty-free exemptions as adults, except on liquor.

All articles purchased abroad must be declared and that includes clothing and other items which may have been used during your travels, as well as authenticated antiques more than 100 years old, original works of art and some other specified items.

DUTIES WILL be assessed on the full purchases shipped or mailed home. However, you may mail gifts of up to $10 retail value to friends and relatives at home without duty. The allowance is one gift per person per day and each package must be clearly marked "Unsolicited gift —valued under $10."

These gifts do not have to be declared by the donor on his return to the United States.

A Fire Which Tempered Red China

On Oct. 16, 1934, the Chinese Red Army found itself in Kiangsi province in southeastern China surrounded by four Kuomintang armies. To avoid annihilation the Reds were forced to give up their base and undertake a 6,000 mile trek to the safety of a new sanctuary in Yenan in the northwestern province of Shensi.

This was "The Long March," a military expedition so hazardous that only one out of 20 of those who left Kiangsi reached Yenan — only 5,000 out of 100,000. Almost over the entire route, the marchers were under attack from the Kuomintang armies, the provincial war lords, the native non-Chinese tribes and the terrain. The Long March is essential to an understanding of present-day China because it was the fire in which the Communist Party and the Red Army were tempered.

It is indeed fortunate that at this point in time when doors between China and the United States are once again beginning to open that this crucial event has superbly described and analyzed in "The Long March 1935" by Dick Wilson.

Wilson is an English journalist who has traveled to China. He lives in Singapore where he is financial editor of the Straits Times and senior editorial adviser to the New Nation. His research is thorough, but not burdensome to the reader. The footnotes are in the back for those who want them. He relies heavily on secondary sources, but he has selected well, and he alerts the reader to the presence of bias and bombast.

It is ironical that Edgar Snow died just prior to the publication of "The Long March 1935." In a masterpiece of interpretive journalism, "Red Star Over China," published in 1937, Snow, who had visited Yenan, described the men, the circumstances and the dynamics that made possible the Long March. It was a compelling tale then, and makes informative reading today, and provides much of the source material for Wilson.

The Long March was not an isolated event like Xenophon's long march home. It exposed much of China to the Communists and their ideas. It exposed today's

A MAP APPEARING in Dick Wilson's "The Long March 1935" traces the tortuous route taken by the First Front Army of the Chinese Communist Party in its historic 6,000-mile trek through the vastness of China.

Chinese leaders to the great diversity of China, an important contribution in a country where most people lived and died in the province in which they were born. It mixed refugees from every part of China into a nation, breaking down the parochialism that had thwarted Sun Yat-sen and Chiang Kai-shek. It may even have foreshadowed the future international posture of China.

For example, Wilson suggests that the harsh treatment of the Communists by the Tibetans may have sowed the seed for China's takeover of Tibet a generation later.

Wilson conveys the hardships, triumphs and defeats of the March with the color and vitality of a reporter. He analyzes the internal and external politics of the period astutely.

"The Long March" is part of a refreshing new openness and honesty about China and the United States' relation with China. On Feb. 15, NBC had a one-hour TV special that tried to explain how the Communists came to power in China and why the U.S. found itself allied with "the wrong dragon." President Nixon has gone to Peking — a far cry from the days when he and other politicians attributed the Chinese Communist success to the American State Department. The United States is re-discovering China, Communists and all.

"The Long March 1935" will be of great help because it does not romanticize the Communist achievement. It does give insight into the morale, unity of purpose and single-mindedness which made this spectacular accomplishment possible.

Wilson also does us another great service in taking us behind the myth of monolithic unanimity which Americans so often tend to ascribe to totalitarian regimes. The Chinese Communists have been rent by factionalism since the party was organized in 1921. It was always slighted by the Russian Comintern advisers who favored Chinese leaders who had been trained in the Soviet Union, which Mao didn't visit until 1950. Not only was Mao not a Russian tool, he was persona non grata to the Russians from the late 1920s until 1948 when he could no longer be slighted because he committed a cardinal Communist sin: he placed Chinese realities before Russian theories by discarding the urban proletariat as a base in favor of the peasant-base dictated by China's overwhelming agrarianism.

Mao's theoretical unorthodoxy not only hampered him in his relations with the Comintern, it also made for complications at home. Internally, Mao achieved only temporary party leadership during the course of the Long March, and then only because of the desperate situation in which the Communists found themselves. It was 10 years after the Long March, in 1945, before Mao had fully estaxlished his pre-eminence.

On the eve of a new day in Sino-American relationships, a wide-spread knowledge of who the Chinese Communists are and how they became that way is of great value, because the Long March shaped a whole generation of Chinese Communists, just as the Great Depression shaped a generation of Americans. To understand the Long March is to undersand the vitality of Chinese Communism. To see the Long March as Wilson presents it is also to see the cracks in the seeming Chinese Communist monolith, to see the generation gap manifested by events like the cultural revolution, to see the personal and ideological differences.

In the 200 years since Americans began trading with China, we have vacillated between romantic notions about the vast Chinese market for our goods and between fear and hatred of the Yellow Peril. Neither the markets nor the peril have materialized. It is high time we put away the myths and recognized the Chinese for the practical, self-interested, ethno-centric people they are. "The Long March 1935" is an important contribution to a new realism vis-a-vis China.

It provides every American with a chance to see the universe of contemporary China in the grain of sand of the Long March. The opportunity should not be missed.

The Sinister Father Figure Who Led And Bled Russia

STALIN, THE HISTORY OF A DICTATOR by H. Montgomery Hyde; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 679 pages, $12.95. Reviewed by James Meldrum.

The historical and philosophical question of whether history makes the man or the man makes history again confronts the reader of this biographical work on Joseph Stalin.

This is not an easy book to read for many reasons. An awareness of the Russian historical, geographical and political changes in the last 100 years is a prerequisite to enjoyable understanding of Hyde's definitive work. The reader may find himself confused with the constant name-juggling among characters and places. Examples of this would be Joseph Stalin himself who was born Joseph Vissarionovich Djugashvili in 1979 in what used to be the independent kingdom of Georgia.

However, the biography is sprinkled with a few maps and pictures of central characters and documents. These help the reader to follow events that are sometimes, to say the least, world-shaking. Among the latter is the documentation of Stalin's non-aggression pact with Hitler and their subsequent mutual betrayals. The many intrigues and vicious purges that were initiated by Stalin would make, as indeed they have, a library of books by themselves.

Students or historians of Stalin(ism) who would hope to find some relief from the usual picture that is painted of the notorious dictator would do well to look elsewhere. If anything, Montgomery Hyde tends to blacken even further an already dark image. His reporting is well-documented and fair. This being the case, there is very little chance of bias being a motivating force in this chronicle.

There are many interesting facets in the life of Stalin. The biography takes us from birth to his last hours, which were, as his daughter Svetlana recalls, "nothing but a slow strangulation... the death agony was horrible." And yet as one reads this history there is no sense of sorrow in watching Stalin die. There is instead a feeling of justice on behalf of Stalin's thousands of innocent victims who are strewn about these pages. One gets the inevitable feeling that Stalin was another of those infamous men without whom the world would have been much better off.

H. MONTGOMERY HYDE
No one was safe

Hyde has it well-documented that no one was safe from this paranoic excuse for a human being. Even Lenin, whom Stalin publicly worshipped, was quite possibly a victim of poisoning in one of the latter's nefarious plots. We see Stalin's personal machinations stretch from the international arena all the way down to the individual Soviet "private" citizen. He wanted nothing less than complete control.

As previously noted, Stalin was a hypocritical manipulator of time and events. He could smile assuredly at a friend and simultaneously give an imperial thumbs down sign to his malicious secret police who would then arrange for the friend's mysterious "disappearance." Should the figure be too popular to just vanish, the confessions of crime against the state would be torturously elicited. This is just one of the ways in which Stalin eliminated opposition, whether real or imagined.

As the author points out, it was only during the war years, when expediency was the rule of the day, that the military Marshal Stalin received any praise at all from world leaders. It was not his humanitarianism nor his loyalty to the allied cause but his ability to successfully oppose the sinister Third Reich that earned him some military plaudits. It is at this time that he emerges as a semi-heroic father figure to the Russian people.

Although a difficult book to read, "Stalin" is worth the effort. Hyde has utilized a mass of Russian-language sources and manuscript collections, including the Trotsky papers. In bringing together this wealth of material he has compressed and refined divergent and confusing works into one definitive volume.

The Foreign Policies Of JFK— A Lost Leadership Opportunity

By DON KEOWN

THE KENNEDY DOCTRINE by Louise FitzSimons; Random House, 275 pages, $7.95.

For those of us who admired John F. Kennedy, it is easier and more reassuring to remember the man than to examine his record. But Louise FitzSimons, with 15 years experience of her own with the federal government, forces us to do the latter — at least its foreign policy aspect — in her book "The Kennedy Doctrine."

The inescapable conclusion is that the martyred young President must bear a greater degree of blame for our present international difficulties than either historians or the public have generally attributed to him.

Even while one suspects that Miss FitzSimons began her book with foregone conclusions and worked toward their substantiaion, thus recognizing that "The Kennedy Doctrine" is a subjective argument, one must also admit that John F. Kennedy and his administration provided her with ample evidence from which to fashion her case.

John F. Kennedy, she makes clear, was thoroughly committed to the thesis of a U.S. role as a world policeman.

Under the theory of counterinsurgency he transformed the passivity of the Dwight Eisenhower foreign policy into an activism that might have seemed excitingly dynamic, but which also sowed the seeds for later difficulties when America found itself over-extended and unwisely committed.

Just as Harry S. Truman started the U.S. down the costly road of unrelenting Cold War with its one-time ally, the Soviet Union, and since has received more credit than criticism for that veer in direction that was to sap so much of the nation's esources and energies, so Kennedy, too, struck an inflexible position in early 1961 that, in the words of Miss FitzSimons, "constituted an enormous expansion of the American role on the world scene."

It, in fact, she says, went well beyond the word "expansion" and consisted of not only "an active counterrevolutionary or counterinsurgency policy involving military efforts against irregular forces seeking to overthrow established governments, but also a full range of political, economic, psychological, and sociological activities." It was a program that Lyndon B. Johnson was to carry on — to a disastrous extreme.

JFK's initial venture into counterinsurgency was hardly of his own making, plans for an invasion of Cuba having been well formulated under CIA leadership by the time he took office. But its catastrophic failure, in the opinion of Miss FitzSimons, played a major part in causing Kennedy, always much concerned with his and his country's images, to adopt hardline, more aggressive policies later to recoup lost prestige.

She examines in detail along with the Bay of Pigs the summit meeting with Nikita Khruschev in Vienna, the Berlin tensions of 1961, the Cuban missile crisis, the commitment in Southeast Asia, and armament decisions and disarmament negotiations. On all of these, she gives JFK poor grades.

Even his handling of the Cuban missile crisis for which he has been so highly praised she faults. Kennedy, she believes, risked nuclear holocaust needlessly, substituting military confrontation for diplomatic negotiation that would have sufficed. This was the approach advocated by Adlai Stevenson but supported in those jittery times by few others.

Kennedy, she admits, handled the Cuban missile crisis well "once he made it a crisis." But "his initial decision that he must remove the missiles at all costs, and immediately, is open to serious question."

It was, she charges, a decision based largely on politics, and she suggests that Kennedy might have withstood the pressures better had they not occurred in an election year.

The value of Kennedy's other great foreign policy triumph, the nuclear test ban treaty, is also questioned. It was largely, the author believes, an ineffective, face-saving device that did little to relieve world tensions and perils, more psychologically than technologically or politically significant — "Indeed, its acceptance by the military demonstrated that the treaty did not at all impede the progress of arms development, particularly American arms development."

The Kennedy administration, she finds, was committed throughout its brief tenure to the expansion of our military strength, and particularly to the concept that we must build up conventional forces for the purpose of intervention in small wars to supplement our nuclear stockpile safeguard against the big and final war.

Perhaps the most important paragraph in Miss FitzSimons' book begins thusly: "Throughout the whole history of armaments the pattern has been the same. What man's ingenuity has invented, his ambition and his curiosity have eventually led him to use. . . ."

If there has been a definite blindness among Kennedy admirers, fostered by the dazzle of the Camelot myth, to the failures and shortcomings of their hero, it seems equally certain that Miss FitzSimons underestimates the importance of the psychological and morale lift that Kennedy gave to a smug and sluggish country, and a disheartened and apathetic world. But she is right in that it is one of history's great tragedies that John F. Kennedy failed to use this charisma and potential for leadership to move his people away from wars and weaponry.

BACK FROM HIS meeting in Vienna is Soviet Premier Nikito Khruschev in 1961, President John F. Kennedy reported by radio and television to the American people that there had been "no advantages or concessions" gained by either side.

It underscores, too, a growing belief that the greatest potential President Kennedy was the Kennedy who never reached that high office — Robert F. Kennedy — who in the years just prior to his untimely death demonstrated a recognition of those needs and a determination to dedicate himself to their realization.

"The tragedy of John F. Kennedy," writes Miss FitzSimons, "was as much in his life as in his death. While he had an ability to touch and move men almost unequaled by any public figure in the modern era, perhaps in much of history, he himself, because of his political beliefs and political approach, failed to understand his own potential for leadership and accomplishment. . . ."

We like to think that his younger brother would not have failed.

SEVERAL paperback publishers and labels have come to specialize in heavy or serious reading, but none dishes out greater doses of profundity that Random House's Vintage Books.

Some examples of recent Vintage works to test your intellect and social awareness:

"Regulating the Poor," the Frances Fox Piven-Richard A. Cloward study of welfare and politics, arguing that in the absence of any real hope for basic economic reform in this country, so-called welfare reform is impractical and even cruel, and that rather than a paring of the rolls, "hundreds of thousands of impoverished families remain who are eligible (and entitled) to assistance but receive no aid at all."

"Rules for Radicals," the "primer for hell-raisers" authored by that well-known and colorful activist and champion of underdogs, Saul D. Alinsky.

"Blaming the Victim," the powerful polemic of Dr. William Ryan upon a complacent system that subjects the victims of poverty to indignities, prejudice and other crippling obstacles, and then attacks or shuns them for their unpretty scars and wounds.

"Asian Drama: An Inquiry into the Poverty of Nations" by Gunnar Myrdal as abridged by Seth S. King, with a special significance to Americans right now for its bearing on our Vietnamese involvement.

On "Equality of Educational Opportunity," edited by Frederick Mosteller and Daniel P. Moynihan, and a compilation of Harvard University faculty seminar papers upon the James S. Coleman-headed Equality of Educational Opportunity report.

In softcover the last named is $3.95, and has been published simultaneously in hardcover at $15. The other paperbacks named range in prices from $1.95 to $3.95.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE WALKING TRIP by Henrietta Buckmaster; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 208 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

A great deal of the pleasure that comes from reading a Henrietta Buckmaster book is derived from her gift for description — in this case, of the big city excitement of London and the rusticity of Scotland.

But she can also spin a solid and exciting suspense plot, and people it with believable characters.

In "The Walking Trip" 19-year-old Madeline Sayer arrives in London from Boston, expecting to be met by her brother Richard who she is to join for a walking trip through Scotland. But her brother fails to appear at their hotel. And Maddy grows increasingly worried as it becomes apparent that Richard, who had been working in Africa, has became dangerously involved in the politics of that restless continent.

There are those who would help her, but plucky Maddy is uncertain as to whom to trust and whom to distrust.

There's a trip north into Scotland in search of the elusive Richard, and finally a climax that not only ties up the loose ends, but also adds a satisfying romantic fillip to the ending. Well done.

ROSS — SHIRLEY COCHELL

Scatter Planting Is Easy Way To Get Seeds Into The Ground

By FRANK J. TAYLOR

Around our neck of the woods, I'm "The Scatter-Planter."

It sounds pretty scatter-brained, but that doesn't bother me as long as scatter-planting the seed beds yields a double or triple harvest of vegetables or flowers from the same small patch of soil.

Like most over-eager green-thumbers, I can't wait come spring for the soil to dry out friable enough for proper tilth before I start planting seeds. Then the seed furrows I used to scratch in the gummy soil filled with clods and a lot of tender sprouts never made it up to sunlight.

That was the situation some years back when a magazine assigned a photographer to shoot me practicing lazy gardening. A glib city fellow, he quipped, "All I know about gardening is, you toss some seeds on the ground and they grow into plants."

AMUSED AT his naivety, I let the silly remark pass. But after he was gone, I had a second thought, to wit, "That Smart Aleck has something; that's the way Nature plants her gardens."

All around our place, lush grasses and wild flowers were pushing up out of the soil like crazy.

That was the genesis of my scatter-planting technique. Insted of sowing seeds tediously in neat furrows and rows, I tried tossing seeds on the ground in beds about two feet wide. Then I raked the soil lightly to cover most of the seeds and spread a half inch layer of ground bark or ground-up peat moss over the seed beds to hold the moisture until tips of green poked through the top dressing.

THE LETTUCE and carrots and onions and other small-seed vegetables came up much too thick, of course.

When the plants were about an inch high, I got out my lazy gardener's weeding seat. This is a smooth three foot board nailed on each end to two-by-eight blocks. The seat straddles a seed bed, enabling gardeners allergic to stooping or squatting to sit and weed indolently. Or to think a scatter-planted seed bed without squatting or crackling knees.

The system panned out so well in the vegetable qatch that I thought, "Why not scatter-plant flower seed, too." The technique worked fine with zinnias, marigolds, poppies, violas and other small-seed flowers.

WHERE scatter-planting didn't work was with corn, squash, melon and sunflower patches. Big seeds still have to go underground, in hills or furrows. But an inch of ground-up leaves or sawdust, or even lawn clippings, as top-dressing kept our gummy soil soft enough for the plants to push through to sunlight without breaking their necks.

Garden Page

Nowdays, I churn up the seed beds in the fall, before the winter rains come, chopping in leaves and plant food pellets. A spread of chopped leaves or shavings keeps the rains from packing the soil.

Come spring, gummy, untillable soil isn't my worry; Old Lazybones just scatter-plants, spreads on a light top-dressing, and lets Nature take it from there.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

- Now is the time to start thinking about potted shrubs and trees for the outdoor living area you will be using this spring and summer. Tubbed Marguerites in dazzling yellow and white colors mke useful decorations with their daisy-like flowers.
- Plant Daylilies now for summer bloom. They thrive in the sun and will highlight a border nicely.
- March is a good month to plant a new lawn, or to renovate an old one. The same goes for most groundcovers.
- It is also Tuberous Begonia planting time. These like part — but not total — shade.
- If you let Arbor Day pass without planting those planned new trees, you can still take care of that job to the benefit of your yard and your neighborhood.
- For quick color there are a number of annuals that can go in now. Included in that number are Calendulas, Violas, Pansies and Marigolds.
- Now is just about the best time of the year for browsing at your nearby nursery. Such a trip is bound to give you a wealth of ideas for 1972 plantings.

A Playground In The Backyard

But there's another answer — a long-used and time-honored one. The kids can have their fun in their own yard.

Not enough space? It depends upon your planning. Properly planned, a considerable amount of play equipment that not only provides diversion but also elps to build strong young muscles and healthy bodies can be located in a very small amount of space.

Too expensive? Not if you build the equipment yourself.

A CLIMBING pole and a sandbox mark a pretty good start for a backyard playground. These require very little space. And the handyman can build them easily with the help of two patterns developed by the Easi-Bild Pattern Co.

Just send $1 (covers both patterns) to Independent-Journal, Easi-Bild Patterns, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Climbing Pole Pattern 154 and Sandbox Pattern 20. Add another 50 cents if you want your patterns sent by special handling. And be sure to include your zip code number.

The materials you will need will consist of pipe and lumber. The directions are complete and easy to follow. And the children will find the climbing pole firmly anchored, and the sandbox sturdy and roomy. The latter can be imaginatively painted to add a touch of color.

LATER ON you can expand your private playground with swings, horizontal bars or other apparatus. But these two projects mark a good starting point.

Good Nails Are Must In Siding

Good nails and nailing practice are vital in proper application of wood siding. It's important to choose rust-resistant nails with the proper point to reduce splitting.

Galvanized or aluminum nails are corrosive-resistant and will not discolor or stain the siding. Ring- or spiral-threaded shanks will lessen a tendency of smooth-shanked nails to loosen during temperature changes.

For best possible holding power with least splitting, a blunt or medium diamond point and a blunt or medium needle point with threaded shank are recommended.

Hidden Messages on Your Walls

Every homeowner in Marin County should get in touch with his (or her) walls immediately. Your walls have a great deal to say about hidden water problems.

Some drainage problems are obvious. Puddles around the house or in the garage call themselves to your attention. But water trapped under your house by the foundation or seepage under your concrete-slab floor might not be noticed. Unless your walls tell you.

Inspect the base of your inside walls on the lowest level of the house. Look for darkened circles in the paint or wallpaper. Feel along for wet or slimy areas. Sniff for musty odors in all the rooms. Be sure to move large pieces of furniture and look for mildew on the wall behind. And look for mildew behind boxes and stored items in the closets.

These are signs that water is standing around or under your home instead of draining away. The water is soaking upward, spreading dampness through walls and floors.

In time, the dampness will warp floors, crumble the wallboard, loosen tile, and blister linoleum. And most dangerous of all, the dampness makes your home's understructure vulnerable to all of Marin's most destructive pests—termites, boring beetles, and dry rot. All are attracted by dampness.

So if you read the writing on the wall, call Hinckley & Gordon. We're licensed structural pest control experts. We're licensed general contractors. And with two generations of experience in Marin, we're experts at correcting drainage problems.

Hinkley & Gordon is a state-licensed structural pest control company. For two generations, we've provided Marin's most expert and thorough pest control services.

ONE OF THE quiet pleasures of Marin living is the enjoyment of the birdlife you can attract into your yard. One of the best methods for bringing in these little feathered guests is, of course, a feeding program. But at this time of the year, shelter can be equally effective. And Steve Ellingson has designed an assortment of seven birdhouses that combine feeding facilities with shelter. For the patterns for all seven projects, just send $3 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Birdhouse Patterns Assortment No. C-12X. Ellingson worked out his designs specifically to accommodate the various sizes and species of birds that are to be found in California. And he took care, too, to make the bird shelters-feeders decorative as well as utilitarian, to add a touch of color to your yard. With the help of the full-size patterns, they are easily built. Just trace the patterns on wood, saw out the parts, and assemble. Lots of illustrations simplify your job. And while you are at it, why not send another $1 for Pattern 371 — a wishing well to grace your yard.

INSIDE YOUR HOME: Always Space For Dining

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

With a bit of manipulation and squeezing, any furniture-mover worth his or her salt should be able to wedge a sit-down dining space into even the smallest living room.

It may not be the traditional grouping of tables and chairs, but it should suffice for small dinner parties or private tete-a-tetes. Since most of us use the dining room infrequently anyway, a wise space-saver might want to consider such ideas as a permanent installation.

THIS FURNITURE takes up little more than the wall space at one end of the living room, and yet it converts quickly into a comfortable dining area for four. A pair of Parsons-type tables can be flipped together to serve quite adequately as the dining surface. And four ottomans provide the seating. Two mirror-tile murals add a decorative touch. And all the components of the setting can be found in Sears Rosebuck stores and catalogs.

More and more of us have moved the sofa away from the wall and out onto the main floor area. Now, with the aid of a handsome library table or flip-top sofa-back table, you can convert to dining for two or four guests. If you do find a fliptop style table, then your party plans can be more expansive.

Another solution is to organize one wall with shallow Parsons-type tables. Two of these can be placed flat along the wall and upholstered ottomans can be tucked beneath each.

INTERESTINGLY enough, all of the ingredients used in this setting were found at Sears Roebuck and Co. retail stores and through the catalogue desk. The mirrors are the self-stick variety; the tables come knocked down for your choice of finishes. You might use bright lacquers, cover the table with a foil wall covering, or laminate a fabric onto the table.

The idea is that when a party is in the offing you place the tables back to back in the living room and use the ottomans as seats. Or if you're at the age where a back support is appreciated, substitute for the ottomans with light-in-scale Italian import chairs. There are some with rush seats and lacquered frames, while others, based on this same Italian look, are actually delineated in slim chrome.

ANOTHER WAY to fulfill dining amenities is to buy a two-seater bench or wooden settle for use against one wall or as part of the conversation grouping. Use the sofa-back table and two pull-up chairs plus the settle to provide for four guests.

If you have an entry hall the bench could work overtime to hold plants, guests' belongings and calling cards.

There's always a variety of versatile coffee-cluster tables to seek out, especially if you are of the floor-sitting age. Guests don't seem to mind eating Japanese-style — even when you're serving corned beef and cabbage.

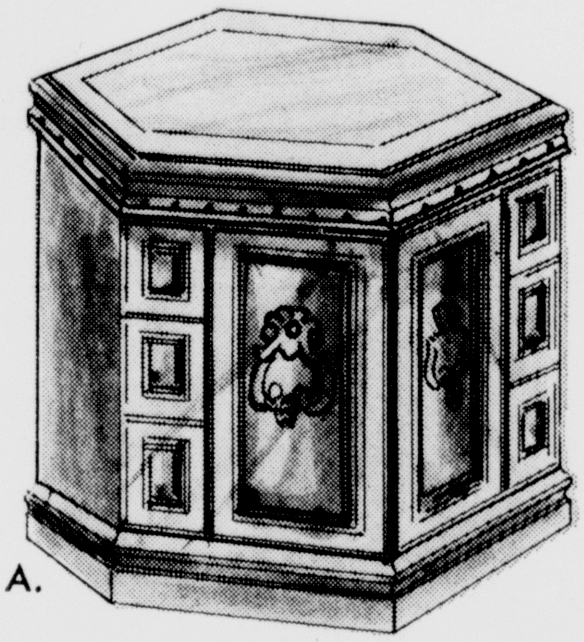

Remember to provide lots of pillows as elbow rests and keep a rolling cart at hand so the hostess doesn't have to keep jumping up and down between courses. Used serving dishes can be temporarily stacked on the cart, while dessert and coffee can be organized ahead of time and left waiting on the lower shelf.

On The Stereo Scene —

By JOHN SUNIER

Resuming the rundown of the new albums on the busy Angel label that we began last week:

"VICTORIA de los ANGELES in Spanish Folk Songs" — Ten Sephardic Songs, Two Songs by Falla (Angel S-36716):

The major item on this latest in de los Angeles' incomparable series of Spanish song albums is a collection of folk tunes assembled and harmonized by the famous Spanish poet Lorca. They range from the Middle Ages through the 19th Century in origin and are full of delightful Spanish rhythms.

The Sephardic Songs were arranged by Manuel Valls and preserve 15th Century Spanish culture as they have been carried by the Jews expelled from Spain in 1492 and forced to settle in other areas. De los Angeles sings them in the Spanish Jewish dialect, and the accompaniment is tenderly provided by Jean Gerard's flute and Oscar Ghiglia's guitar.

"THE BEST OF Gilbert & Sullivan" — Music from "The Mikado," "Iolanthe," "H.M.S. Pinafore," "The Pirates of Penzance," "The Yeoman of the Guard" — Baker/Evans/Sinclair/Lewis/others/Glydebourne Festival Chorus/Pro Arte Orchestra/Sir Malcolm Sargent (Seraphim S-60149):

Angel has chosen from their popular series of complete G & S operettas featuring some of the top artists in this specialized field and put together a wonderful collection of favorites, nearly all of which will be familiar to even casual Gilbert E. Sullivan fans: "Little Buttercup," "Captain of the Pinafore," "A Wandering Minstrel I," and 15 others.

A bully fine disc, say I.

KALINNIKOV: "Symphony No. 1 in G Minor" — Moscow Philharmonic Symphony/Kiril Kondrashin (Melodiya/Angel SR-40173):

Following closely on the heels of this label's Kalinnikov "Symphony No. 2" comes the first stereo discing of the First Symphony. Dating from the turn of the century, the work belongs to the Tchaikovsky school but sounds more like Borodin than anyone else. Good stereo.

This is the premiere recording of Shostakovich's latest symphony. Soprano and bass soloists are backed by a chamber orchestra in songs on texts by Lorca, Apollinaire, Kuchelbeck and Rilke.

It is more like a large-scale symphonic song cycle than a symphony, with all 11 songs dealing in one way or another with the subject of death. The work is very personal and deeply felt, something to be listened to closely with libretto in hand.

Shostakovich has probably contributed more to music for the films than any other famous composer of our time. Most of his more than two dozen efforts are unknown in the West. So, to try to expose this side of his talents, here are excerpts from two of his film scores. They are set in simple forms of waltzes, scherzos and marches, and certainly won't steal the limelight from such as the "Fifth Symphony" or the String Quartets, but nevertheless are of higher musical value than Alfred Newman, Dimitri Tiomkin and their likes.

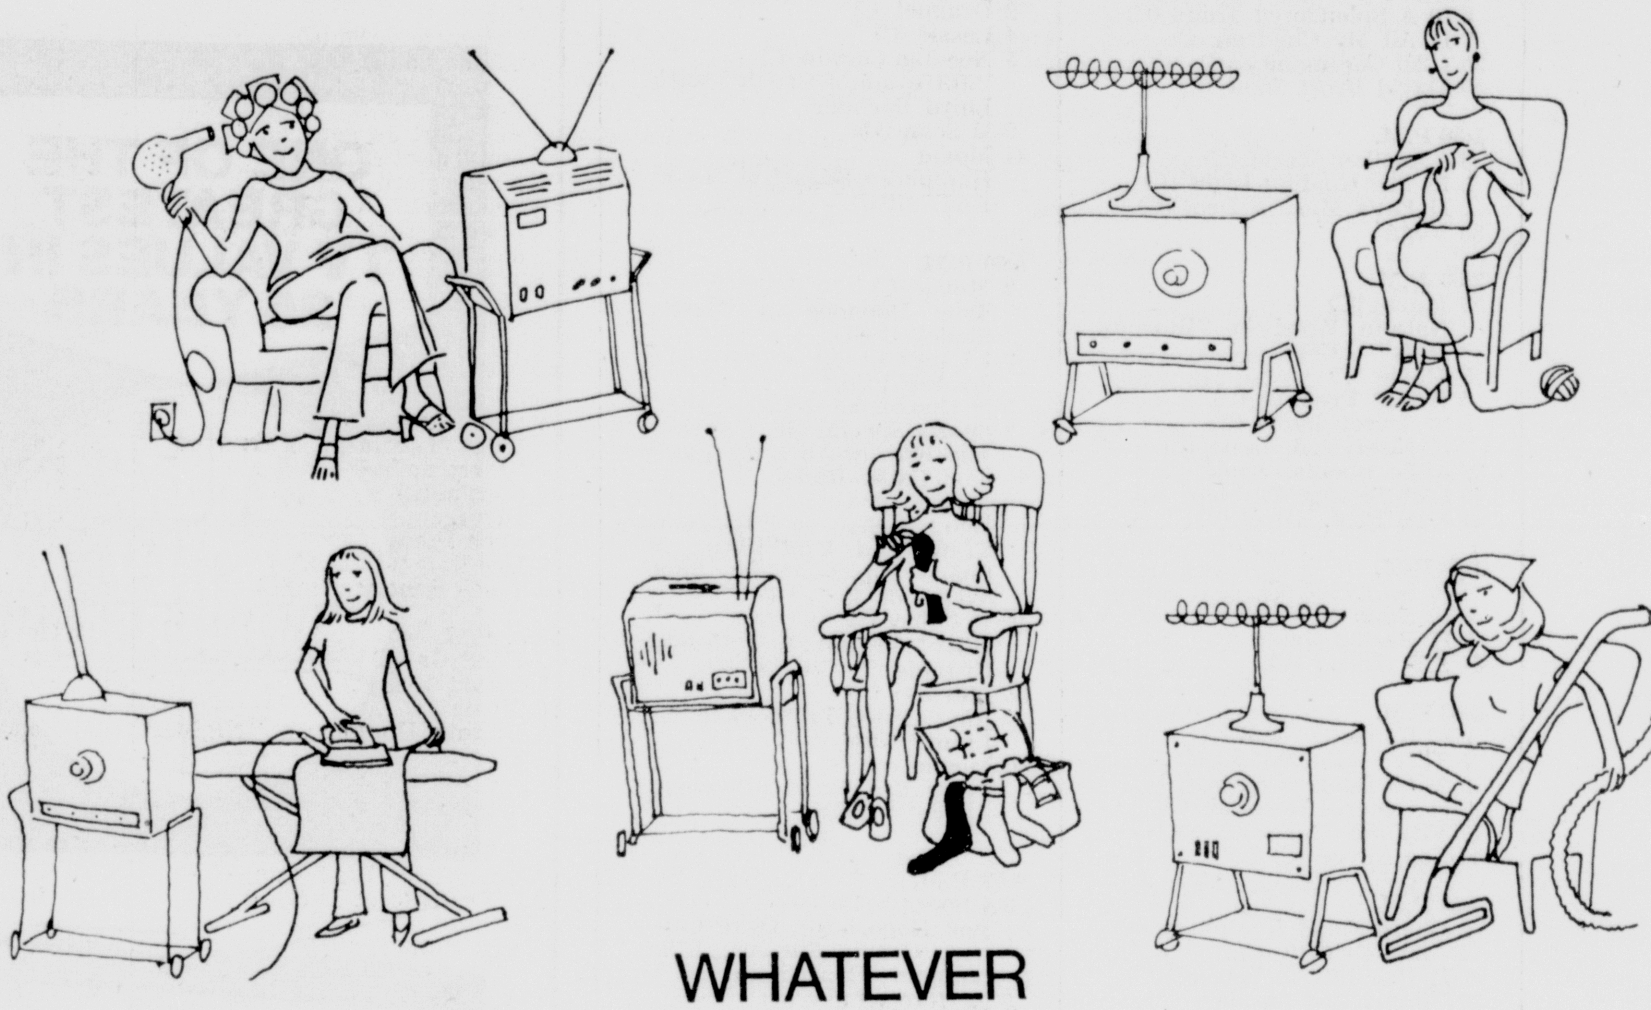

"THREE TRUMPET" — Arutyunian/Vainberg/Kryukov — Timofey Dokschitzer, trumpet/Bolshoi Theater Orchestra/Rozhdestvensky and (in the Arutyunian:) Zuraitis — (Melodiya/Angel SR-40149): Called "the Oistrakh of the trumpet," Dikschitser is the star of this LP. All three concerti provide excellent vehicles for his amazing technique. The first is by an Armenian composer and makes use of folk material of that country. Tme Vainberg concerto uses the most advanced compositional idiom and is filled with both fantastic and sarcastic moods, culminating in an extremely madcap finale that constantly tries to go into the "Wedding March" but never quite makes it. The first-rate engineering complements this matchless LP of trumpet virtuosity.

PROKOFIEFF: — "Four Portraits from The Gambler, "Suite from Love for Three Oranges," "They Are Seven" — Moscow Radio Symphony/Gennady Rozhdestvensky (Melodiya/Angel SR-40157):

The second of the two operatic suites here will likely be most familiar to listeners. The colorful and witty music for the sophisticated fairytale about the great efforts to make the sad prince laugh is exemplified in the popular short "March and Scherzo" from "Love for Three Oranges."

The first suite is a complete re-composition of music associated with the four main characters of the opera "The Gambler," plus a "Denouement" movement.

Finally, a very unusual cantata for tenor, chorus and orchestra that dabbles in primitive sinister rituals of Babylonian times is "They Are Seven." Some of the feeling of the better-known "Scythian Suite" are found in this barbaric musical sketch.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Irna Phillips, a pioneer creator and writer of radio and television serials, is back as head writer of the long-running CBS program, "As the World Turns," which she originated in 1956 and served as writer for 14 of its 16 years.

ABC has renewed its contract with the National Collegiate Athletic Association for telecasting football games in 1972 and 1973. There will be 19 games each year, one more than in 1971. And, after the sixth Saturday game, the network is permitted to choose the rest of the contests on a weekly basis, meaning that there should be an important contest each Saturday and not just a game between a couple of teams going nowhere in national rankings.

Four-Channel Sound Is Here To Stay, Say Stereo Pioneers

By WILLIAN D. LAFFLER

Two highly respected pioneers in the reproduction of recorded music have come to the defense of four-channel sound at a time when the controversial system needs support from the top.

Enoch Light, president of Project 3 Records, and Avery Fisher, president of Fisher Radio, say they are confident the four-channel, or quadraphonic, medium is here to stay.

What is quadraphonic sound?

IT IS SIMPLY an embellishment of stereo, which requires two speakers — one to reproduce musical notes recorded on one side of the record groove and one to play back the sound recorded on the other side of the groove. Double stereo and you have quadraphonic sound, which moves through four speakers independently.

Both Light and Fisher have impressive credentials to back up their confidence in the four-channel system.

Light is "Mr. Software" of the recording industry. He revolutionized the stereophonic process with "Persuasive Percussion" when he headed Command Records several years ago.

Fisher is "Mr. Hardware" in the business. His firm has been manufacturing high quality playback equipment for more than half a century.

"FOUR-CHANNEL sound is not exactly new," Light says. "In 1963 Dr. Lloyd Ryan of General Electric came to me and asked if I thought I could develop this sound. I told him I could, and I started making four-channel open-reel tapes and cartridges eight years ago."

Light's Project 3 label already has begun commercial production of four-channel records along with Columbia, Vanguard, Ovation, Crewe and Audio-Spectrum. Veteran bandleader Stan Kenton also is recording in quadraphonic sound on his own label.

Fisher, who produced the first high fidelity receiver in 1937, introduced tha first four-channel receiver last year. Receivers also are being produced in Japan for export.

"THERE IS MORE detail, definition and intelligibility in four-channel sound than there ever was with mono or stereo sound," Fisher claims.

Fisher compares monophonic, or one-channel sound, with the caroming of billiard balls on a pool table. He feels that stereo was a great improvement but that the listener can be totally immersed in the sound of quadraphonic music.

Stereo set owners received the false impression that the new system would render their expensive equipment obsolete. They can convert their existing set to four-channel sound by adding a conventional stereo amplifier or a converter, two speakers and a decoder. This can be done for about $150.

THE IMPRESSION also has been given that the listener has to sit in the center of the four-speaker area to enjoy the full benefits of quadraphonic sound.

RCA and Project 3 use the so-called "discrete" true system of channeling separate and balanced signals into each speaker. Companies using the "matrix" system allow signals to leak into the rear speakers to get what they believe is the ambience of the studio or concert hall.

COLUMBIA IS the most active company at this time and, for this reason, its matrix system may become dominant. Columbia has issued 39 albums and more are being recorded.

On the positive side, the industry has tried to avoid the problem of incompatibility which arose with the manufacture of the first stereo records which required a special stylus and could not be played on conventional hi-fi sets. Most four-channel records can be played on stereo sets.

AND FISHER FEELS that the demand of youth for the proper atmosphere surrounding rock music will ensure success of quadraphonic sound, once four-channel records are in mass production.
